NINE HAVE BEEN arrested in a plot to murder Calles, Mexican President. He says the Catholic Church seeks to get rid of him; the same charge against the Mohammedan Church was made by Kemal Pasha, dictator of Turkey, recently. He announced that religious bigotry and superstition were seeking to murder him and caused him to hang 60 at dawn. Since then Kemal has hanged 14 others. He promised to hang many more.

CALLES will probably proceed more moder.tely. Primo de Rivera, Spanish dictator, told in his methods compared with Mussolini and Kemal, has his troubles. An enemy threw a dagger at him. It missed and Primo calmly put the dagger in his pocket.

CATHOLIC BISHOPS in Mexico suggest to President Calles a truce, enforcement of anti-religious laws to be withheld and religious functions restored until the whole matter can be submitted to popular vote. It is probable that Calles will reject the suggestion. The vote would be overwhelmingly in favor of the Catholic Church.

Churches Looted in Mexico

PROTESTANT EDIFICES GUARDED; BIG CITIES UNDER ARMED TROOPS

Mexico City, Aug. 3.—Under cover of the transfer from religious to State authorities, looting of Catholic churches broke out in Northern Mexico.

Simultaneously with this development an unexpected twist was given to the religious strife when guards were stationed about all Protestant churches.

This action was taken at the urgent request of high Protestant church officials who expressed a belief that there edifices were a danger of attack.

Six looters, who attempted to rob a cathedral in Saltillo were arested by soldier guards and thrown into prison. Although the action caused great excitement in the city there was no disorder.

Nearly all of northern Mexico was under a virtual military guard today, with troops patrolling the streets of all the larger cities and controlling all Catholic church properties.

Dire disaster to the country because of the government policy was predicted by superstitious folk after a number of fish were knocked up in the streets of Durango during a heavy rain of rain.

A wet-stricken worshippers on their way to church fell upon their knees on muddy sidewalks in the pelting rain, praying fervently.

In Torreon detachments of mounted troops patrolled the streets although all the larger cities and

FULLER LETS ALIENISTS TEST CARBARN SLAYER

Three alienists examined John J. Devereaux in the death house today shortly before the all-important hearing before Governor Fuller, when the executive will decide whether the question of life or death for the carbarn slayers shall come before the Executive Council.

Those fighting for the lives of the three Brighton men gathered renewed hope from the fact that the Governor acceded to the request of Attorney Francis Joggins, leading the figat for commutation, to have Devereaux, the man who did the actual killing, examined as to his sanity.

The Governor qualified his favor by sending another alienist, to represent the State. The three reports will be filed with the Governor immediately.

Examining one of the hardest fought legal battles in years five men and women who have been working day and night for weeks obtaining signatures to the clemency petition, went to the State House to deliver the petition and to

PONZI GAINS ONE DAY DELAY ON WRIT PLEA

Houston, Tex., Aug. 3.—Charles Ponzi's attorneys today succeeded in postponing until tomorrow the hearing on their application for a writ of habeas corpus to free the financial "wizard."

Faced with the order of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson giving Massachusetts authorities the right to take Ponzi back to jail, attorneys decided to reframe their arguments in the habeas corpus proceedings and asked the one day delay, which was granted.

The case was called in district court here and the postponement then effected, while Ponzi was expressing confidence in the ultimate success of his efforts to gain permanent freedom. Should Judge Ashe rule tomorrow that Ponzi is illegally restrained the extradition papers without effect and the dapper "wizard" will be immediately released.

Director Jim Mitchell and Assistant Attorney General Shrigley of Massachusetts hoped to get Ponzi and start back with him this week, but it is said that his attorneys plan appeal proceedings to higher authorities if Judge Ashe rules against them.

ORIENTAL JEWELS AND ANTIQUES STOLEN BY BURGLARS IN BACK BAY

Russian and Oriental jewels, including rare antiques, and all valued by Benjamin Kabatznick at $40,000, were stolen from his Art and Gift Shop, No. 484 Boylston street, Back Bay, early today.

According to Kabatznick more than 300 pieces, together with old silver and imported leather bags, were taken from the "Holy of Holies Room" in the rear of the store.

Three pieces, one a $460 imperial jade necklace, another a spray of old Mine rose diamonds, that cost the same amount, and an amethyst barpin valued at several hundreds of dollars, were stolen from the show-window.

A feature of the break, which was discovered today, was the fact, according to the police, that the lock had been taken off the front door and another substituted so that the officer on the route would not notice anything wrong.

When Hyman Sudenfield, an employe, arrived to open the store for business today he was unable to unlock the front door. Going to the rear he found that door open and an investigation revealed the robbery.

FINDS EVIDENCE IN HALL CASE MISSING

Somerville, N. J., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Important evidence in the sensational Hall-Mills murder case was missing today from the official files.

Transcripts of statements made by witnesses in the initial inquiry four years ago have been removed from the safe of the warden of Somerset county jail, according to State Senator Simpson, newly appointed special prosecutor, who declared he was horrified by the discovery.

Despite the handicap, however, Senator Simpson expressed the belief he had sufficient evidence at hand to indict a woman and at least two men for the murder of the Rev. Dr. Edward W. Stall and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills.

"While we have enough for indictments," the senator said, "I am horrified to learn that much of the important evidence is missing. Among it is the pistol of Willis Stevens. This, I am told, was returned to him after it had been kept for some time in the safe of the warden of the Somerset County Jail.

"There are also many important statements by witnesses, which were also in the warden's safe, that are missing. Strange to say, however, the one document which was carefully preserved was an affidavit by

STOCKS JUMP; MOTORS LEAD

New York stocks were generally higher today, led by General Motors. The big motor issue was churned over in blocks of shares, running as high as 5,000 on a single transaction. A new record high was set when the stock sold at $211.25 a share, up around 10 points from yesterday's closing figure. Yesterday General Motors advanced above 200 for the first time, amid frenzied buying, and closed up over 7 points.

General Motors sold this year at a low of 113¾.

Helen Wills Maintains Popularity Lead

America's athletic heroes should look to their laurels, for the fair heroine of the tennis courts, Helen Wills, is still leading them all in Boston in the big Popularity Contest which is being sponsored over the length and breadth of the nation by Hearst newspapers.

Helen took the lead here immediately upon the opening of the contest, and in today's count she was still well ahead of her nearest competitor, Babe Ruth, although the latter had picked up somewhat from the first day's results. Helen has 213 votes and the Babe 186.

Running a good third with 181 is Bobby Jones, and the remarkable thing is that one of these three names has appeared upon virtually every ballot received thus far.

That this contest, which is being run by the Boston Evening American and other Hearst papers throughout the country is an effort to discover the most popular though there was no disorder. A committee of citizens was appointed by the government authorities to have control of churches.

Two shifts of two men each will be on duty at places of worship to keep them open from six in the morning until eight o'clock at night. During those hours worshippers may enter, but priests are barred from holding masses.

The Knights of Columbus sought the privilege of acting as custodians but were refused by the governor.

Prayer Only Weapon Used In Hope to Get Plebiscite

Mexico City, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Counseled by their religious leaders to keep to the paths of peace and moderation, Mexico's Catholics today continued praying for a solution of the problem resulting from the government's religious regulations and the withdrawal of the priests from the churches.

As a further protest, people in many parts of the country are ceasing to buy anything except essentials, although the effects of this economic ban, fostered by the League for defence of Religious Liberty, thus far have not been evident in Mexico City.

CALLES AGAINST VOTE.

Intermediaries are working quietly in an effort for an understanding. President Calles has refused the episcopate's proposal for a truce, conditional upon the government's suspending its regulations pending a plebiscite to determine the people's will, but influential personages are seeking informal exchanges between the episcopate and government officials, believing an accord possible.

Nothing in the present status contemplates formal negotiations, and perhaps such a stage will never be reached. The effort is to get some sort of understanding which would permit a graceful suspension of the controversy, neither side being obliged openly to abandon its position.

Peace feelers, begun a week ago, failed. These efforts were made by Bishop Guisear y Valensia of Vera Cruz, according to persons close to him. The bishop, who is a friend of Secretary of the Interior Tejeda, came to the capital, but found the government unyielding. It is said he acted on his own initiative.

The government believes any danger of serious disorders has passed, but armed forces are kept ready for emergency.

Archbishop Mora y Del Rio and the Mexican Episcopate have issued a letter to the Catholics expressing gratification that their attitude has not been one of anger. The letter says:

ATTITUDE LAUDED.

"Your conduct has been worthy of all praise. The mere announcement of the cessation of services caused you to besiege the churches and prepare yourselves by receiving the Holy Sacraments.

"However end earth have been able to understand that the Mexican people, despite its national sins and despite the many faults of its sons, is a profoundly Catholic nation and that its members love their faith more than their own interests and lives.

"It has been a great consolation to us to note the assiduity with which you have prayed in the temples despite the absence of your priests. Your collective prayer, united with that of the Pope, will no doubt be accepted before the eyes of God and will bring peace to the consciences and to the union of the Mexican family."

K. of C. Convention to Discuss Mexico Crisis

Philadelphia, Aug. 3.—The most important question to be discussed at the Knights of Columbus National Convention which opened here today will be the religious crisis in Mexico, according to Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty.

"It is possible," declared Flaherty, "the result of the convention deliberations will be an appeal to the government to protest against the manner in which President Calles is suppressing religious freedom. Naturally our organization feels keenly about the situation."

one of the witnesses who attacked the State's case." Statements of five persons under suspicion were missing, while Dr. Hall's spectacles, with finger marks wiped off, were saved.

The Senator said one of his first steps would be to learn how this evidence disappeared and who is responsible for its disappearance.

Senator Simpson declined to say whether he believed the evidence was sufficient to warrant the arrest last week of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, widow of the slain rector, now free in $15,000 bail.

When asked if there would be another arrest today the Senator remarked: "It is sometimes wise to leave people at large, even when they are under suspicion."

The prosecutor said it is probable the only witness he would call in the near future would be Mrs. Gibson, the "pig woman." He said he was "absolutely convinced," after an examination of Mrs. Gibson yesterday, "that she is not the type of person who, through sheer imagination, could invent any of the evidence which she gives for the night of the murder."

The Senator said Mrs. Gibson told him she recognized a woman and two of the men.

HOLD DR. NOLAN ON INDICTMENT

Dr. James P. A. Nolan, Brookline Physician, was arraigned in Waltham District Court today on a charge of illegal surgery in the case of Lillian McCullouch, Waltham girl, who died from the alleged effects.

The case against him was dismissed as were the cases of Richard A. King, the girl's sweetheart, and Mrs. Abbie Graham, who are charged with being accessories and the trio were arrested by State Detectives Sherlock and O'Neil on indictment warrants from Middlesex County on the same charges.

make personal appeals to the Governor for commutation of the sentence to life imprisonment.

Relatives of the three were elated today when Congressman William P. Connery of Lynn said he would see or write the Governor, maying his plea as one service man for another, as Devereaux was a World War hero.

Meanwhile the prisoners themselves remained in good spirits, placing implicit faith in the petition which friends and relatives prepared for the State's chief executive.

VISITED BY FATHER.

Immediate members of the family visited the men in the "Death House" at Charlestown, from which the "Short Walk" is visible. Over the "Short Walk," a dozen paces or so, Edward J. Helnlein, John J. McLaughlin and John J. Devereaux will go to their doom unless the Governor saves them.

Perhaps the most touching scene of the trio's short stay in the "Death House" occurred when John J. Devereaux, Sr., father of one of the convicted boys, visited his son.

Stooped and gray from the worry of the fight to save his boy's life, Mr. Devereaux walked through familiar scenes to the "Death House." He sobbed as his eyes caught sight of the cells where the three youths are incarcerated.

LOOK UP PRECEDENTS.

Perhaps more than other relatives he realized the significance of the scene. For Devereaux's father, for years a guard in that same death house, had seen many take the "Short Walk," which ends in death.

In addition to the petition, Governor Fuller will also have detailed reports upon each case, submitted to him after an exhaustive investigation by Chairman Frank Brooks of the parole board, to consider.

Permission to have Devereaux examined by Dr. Miner Evans and Dr. I. Grew, alienists, will be sought at the hearing before Governor Fuller by Attorney Francis A. Juggins, counsel for the youths.

Then obtaining a corrugated box from the shipping department, the thieves proceeded to clean out the place of its choicest jewelry and antiques. The loot included brooches, rings, necklaces, cameos and old jade, some of it said to have been rare and costly.

Then the blank screen was torn down from the rear of the showroom window, and the three pieces named were taken.

The police were notified and Sergeant Patrick McDermott of Station 16 with a squad of officers, was sent to the store.

In the back yard they found a complete kit of burglars' tools, including an electric drill, bits, a wrench and jimmies. Inspector Timothy Donovan was summoned from headquarters, but was able to find only one finger print, and that not complete, on a show case.

Habetznick told the police that two suspicious appearing men visited the store yesterday, saying they wished to look around. After examining the entire stock one purchased two cheap cash trays, and the men left.

Two weeks ago a window in the same store was broken and jewelry valued at 1,000 stolen.

MRS. BLANK HITS SECT TEACHING DANGER

Cambridge Committee Hears Inside Story of "Hypnotic Power" of De Bit

Accusing Ralph M. de Bit, founder and president of the School of The Sacred Science, with ridiculing man-made marriage laws, "Puritanical prejudice," and all other conventions, and practicing hypnotism on his pupils, a self-styled former student of the school voluntarily told her story to the Cambridge City Council's committee on licenses.

The committee met to consider the favorable recommendation of the Cambridge City Council for granting a charter to the school on petition of three Cambridge women, and others.

SAYS IT'S A DANGER.

The former student of the school gave her name on a piece of paper to Chairman Charles H. Shea and was introduced to the committee as "Mrs. Blank." She was a fine looking woman of about 28. After hearing her story the committee went into executive session and then announced the matter had been taken under consideration pending further investigation.

The story told by "Mrs. Blank" proved sensational. She accused de Bit before the committee, as she said she had accused him in a letter she sent him, with being the mysterious "I. K." head of the Great School of Natural Sciences, who was ousted from Chicago in 1916 or 1917 for teachings identical to those she said de Bit was advocating just before he went West two weeks ago.

She prefaced her story by saying: "I come before you to save other women in other parts of the country from being duped and misled. Mr. de Bit should not be allowed to incorporate. He is dangerous to women from a financial standpoint and in other ways.

SHEA FIGHTS CHARTER.

At the opening of the hearing the application for a charter as filed at the State House, in which purposes of the schol to publish, maintain schools, camps and houses of worship, etc., were outlined, was read. Next followed the report of Police Lieutenant John Powers, who reported favorably on the character of the three Cambridge women who had petitioned for the charter.

After commenting briefly on his own personal investigation of the school, Chairman Shea said that in his opinion the school would not be allowed to incorporate. He then invited "Mrs. Blank" to testify.

"Mrs. Blank" told of the hypnotic powers she was certain de Bit practised, and explained the "astral projections" that had been performed.

The voluntary witness went into details regarding the attack made by de Bit on marriage laws and other conventions.

"In the beginning of the term de Bit's reperation class was open to the public," she said. "During that period the teachings were veiled, and very high. Then the class became closed to the pubic. The teachings then became more frank.

"He ridiculed wives who would remain with husbands whom they no longer loved, and called them 'cats who purred for their saucers of milk.'

SWAYED MEMBERS.

"He had a control over his audience that I believe was hypnotic. When some of the members would stay away because of the stories that were circulating, he would notice it and say 'They will come back,' and they did come back. I felt a peculiar grip on my mind, and want to ask him if he held me hypnotically, and if so, why.

"He said it was only that our Egos had recognized each other as having known each other in some previous incarnation, and they simply made a close contact with each other. I then took his words for it, but I now believe he exerted his mental power over me completely."

Being brought back to Hub from Pennsylvania charged with murder of 12-year-old Mary Romanuk when she tried to shield her mother from slayer's bullets.

HOLD MAN FOR SLAYING GIRL

Joseph Boychauk, 40, charged with the murder of 12-year-old Mary Romanuk of Peabody, is under arrest and was being brought here today from Pittston, Pa., where police located him after a search lasting two weeks.

The girl was shot down when she tried to shield her mother, Mrs. Lena Romanuk, from the bullets alleged to have been fired by Boychauk, who was a rejected suitor of Mrs. Romanuk, a widow.

The mother is recovering from two bullet wounds received in the shooting. Boychauk is said to have fled the scene of the slaying in an automobile which was later found abandoned by North River, leading to the belief he had drowned himself.

STRIKE CLOSES PAPER PLANT IN LEOMINSTER

Leominster, Aug. 3 (A.P.)—The George W. Wheelwright Paper Company plant has been closed indefinitely as a result of strike of employes.

One department went on strike last Friday when it voiced objection to an efficiency expert timing work with a stop watch. Others have joined the strikers since and demands have now been formulated for an increase in wages as well as abolishment of stop watch timing. The plant employs about 100. It was not closed until so many had joined the strikers that further operation was impossible.

Fined for Speeding

Saco, Me., Aug. 3.—Grace A. Williams of Cambridge, Mass., was found guilty of speeding and fined $50 and costs by Judge Chesley.

ACTOR'S FRIEND

Mrs. Irene Schoellkopf of Buffalo won a Paris decree from her millionaire husband. She was the victim of the celebrated $300,000 gem robbery in 1922 at a gay party in the apartment of Frank Carman, the actor.

4,000 FIGHT FOREST FIRES IN 3 STATES

Missoula, Mont., Aug. 3 (A.P.)—With the Western glacier park district forest fires situation reported greatly improved, more than 4,000 men are attempting to establish control lines about large stands of timber burning in Idaho, Montana and Eastern Washington.

The Kaniksu, Flathead, Black feet, Coeur d'Alene and Pend Oreille forests have been hardest hit by fires

DECREE FOR GEM THEFT VICTIM

Paris, Aug. 3 (A.P.)—A divorce decree was registered today in favor of Mrs. C. P. Hugo Schoellkopf of Buffalo, N. Y., Mrs. Schoellkopf was granted a non-conciliation order in March. She has been separated from her husband, a wealthy Buffalo manufacturer, for three years.

New York, Aug. 3 (A.P.)—Mrs. Irene M. Schoellkopf of Buffalo was the central figure in one of New York's most notorious jewel robberies. At a gay New Year's eve party in 1923 in the apartment of Frank Barrett Carman on West Fifty-second street, Carman, a former actor, artist and dancer, had been a traveling companion of the Schoellkopf's during their trips to Europe.

Mrs. Schoellkopf was dragged from Carman's apartment and her gems, worth $300,000, were stripped from her by three men. Carman was held, but Mrs. Schoellkopf did not press charges against him and he was later discharged. Matthew Biddulph, arrested here, confessed, and was sentenced to six years in Sing Sing prison. In 1924 Eugene Moran and Albert Horowitz were arrested and confessed. They received prison sentences. Most of the jewelry was recovereh through a "fence."

Prout Opens Quarters

Attorney William C. Prout, candidate for the Democratic nomination for District Attorney of Suffolk county, opened headquarters in the Journal Building at Washington and Water streets.

ASTORS VISIT GIBSONS

Rockland, Me., Aug. 3 (A.P.)—Lady Astor and her children had a gloomy welcome to the coast of Maine today so far as the weather was concerned.

Soon after leaving Boston the steamer Camden, on which they made the voyage, ran into a fog bank and drizzling rain, which grew worse as the steamer neared Maine.

The first woman member of the British Parliament traveled as democratically as any of the other passengers. Her party remained in the staterooms which had been reserved for them most of the journey, but it was doubtful whether they were able to sleep because the fog siren blew continuously as the steamer nosed its way up the coast.

Lady Astor and the children did not leave their rooms until the steamer reached Camden. Landing there, they were conveyed by automobile to the Camden Yacht Club, from where they embarked in a speed boat for the summer home of Lady Astor's sister, Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, at Islesboro.

Mr. Gibson, who met Lady Astor in Boston, accompanied her here.

"Ask Pola," Says Rudy; Likes Red Heads

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 3 (A.P.)—For final decision upon the oft-rumored Valentino-Negri nuptials, "Ask Pola," said Rudolph on his arrival here, but he admitted a personal preference for red heads.

The Chicago duel having left the front pages, his next picture will be around the career of the sprightly Mona. Benvenuto Cellini.

FORTUNES SPENT IN HUB YEARLY IN CARE OF PETS

A fortune is spent every year by Bostonians for medical treatment for pet dogs, cats and other favorite animals and birds.

According to figures furnished by Dr. Francis H. Rowley, head of the Angell Memorial Hospital, Longwood avenue, Roxbury, $240,000 is contributed to his institution for the care of sick or injured pets annually. More than 32,000 pets of all kinds were treated in one year.

WOMAN HELD IN COP BRIBERY

Worcester, Aug. 3.—Trapped while it is alleged she was trying to bribe a policeman to drop a charge against a male companion, Mrs. Margaret Niacy, 30, of Chandler street, was arraigned in district court today and held in $2,000 for the Grand Jury. She was arrested in a hotel.

Mustapha Baker, 36, of Summer street, for whom Mrs. Niacy is alleged to have attempted the bribery, was held in $1,000 for the Grand Jury on a charge of carrying a pistol in violation of the alien fire arms law. Both pleaded not guilty.

Police say Baker and Mrs. Niacy were in an automobile when a policeman, led to the car by the woman's husband, arrested Baker for carrying a pistol.

Patrolman Luke Dillon, who made the arrest, reported today that Mrs. Niacy tried to bribe him to testify that the gun was found on the floor of the automobile, not on Bakar himself. Dillon arranged a meeting in the hotel lobby, where a sergeant was secreted behind a door.

When Mrs. Niacy, it is charged, handed Dillon $20, the policeman gave a signal and the sergeant stepped out, seized the bills and arrested her for attempted bribery.

Craig Kennedy in "The White Hand"

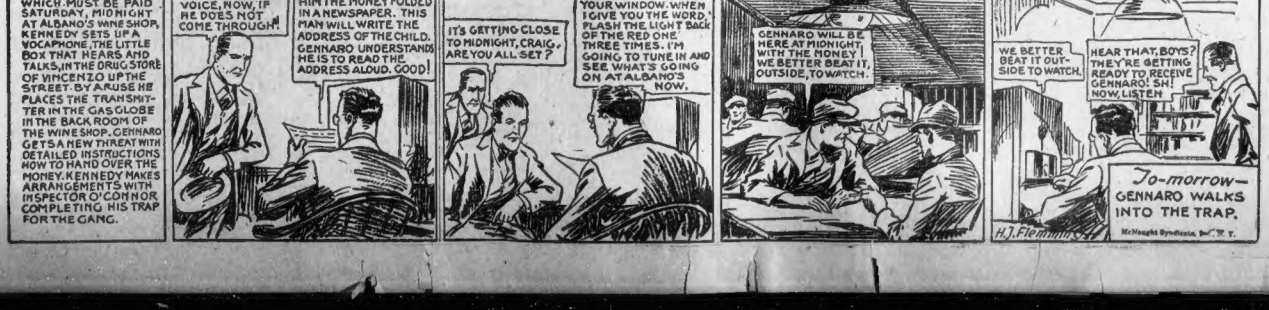
Listening In

By Arthur B. Reeve



DONEZ, THE LITTLE DAUGHTER OF GENNARO, FAMOUS TENOR, HAS BEEN KIDNAPPED AND HELD FOR $20,000 RANSOM, WHICH MUST BE PAID SATURDAY, MIDNIGHT AT ALBANO'S WINE SHOP. KENNEDY SETS UP A VOCAPHONE, THE LITTLE BOX THAT HEARS AND TALKS, IN THE DRUG STORE OF VINCENZO UP THE STREET. BY A RUSE HE PLACES THE TRANSMITTER IN THE GAS GLOBE IN THE BACK ROOM OF THE WINE SHOP. GENNARO GETS A NEW THREAT WITH DETAILED INSTRUCTIONS HOW TO HAND OVER THE MONEY. KENNEDY MAKES ARRANGEMENTS WITH INSPECTOR O'CONNOR COMPLETING HIS TRAP FOR THE GANG.
AND, CRAIG, THEY THREATEN TO RUIN GENNARO'S VOICE, NOW, IF HE DOES NOT COME THROUGH!
I SEE. THE MAN WHO RECEIVES THE RANSOM IS TO BE SEATED AT THE BACK WINDOW. GENNARO IS TO HAND HIM THE MONEY FOLDED IN A NEWSPAPER. THIS MAN WILL WRITE THE ADDRESS OF THE CHILD. GENNARO UNDERSTANDS HE IS TO READ THE ADDRESS ALOUD. GOOD!
IT'S GETTING CLOSE TO MIDNIGHT, CRAIG. ARE YOU ALL SET?
ALL BUT ONE THING, WALTER. NOW, VINCENZO, STAND OVER BY THOSE COLORED BOTTLES IN YOUR WINDOW. WHEN I GIVE YOU THE WORD, FLASH THE LIGHT BACK OF THIS RED ONE THREE TIMES. I'M GOING TO TUNE IN AND SEE WHAT'S GOING ON AT ALBANO'S NOW.
GENNARO WILL BE HERE AT MIDNIGHT WITH THE MONEY! WE BETTER BEAT IT, OUTSIDE, TO WATCH.
WE BETTER BEAT IT OUTSIDE TO WATCH.
HEAR THAT, BOYS? THEY'RE GETTING READY TO RECEIVE GENNARO! SH! NOW, LISTEN
To-morrow— GENNARO WALKS INTO THE TRAP.

HELEN FORD PRESENTED WASHINGTON ELM PIECE

Instead of being "birched," as tried to be the custom in 1776, Betsy Burke, alias Helen Ford of "Dearest Enemy" at the Tremont, was publicly "aimed" by Mayor Quinn at Cambridge City Hall today. Miss Ford was presented with a piece of the celebrated Washington elm, and H. T. Eldridge, who plays the part of the commander-in-chief of the Continental Army in the play, made the presentation speech. Richard Powell Burns, a native of Cambridge, whose brother, killed in France, has a playground named in his honor, will accompany Miss Ford to place a wreath on it.

Coming Events

"The Show-Off" with Ford Sterling and Lois Wilson will be the screen feature at the Metropolitan starting next Saturday.

"My Country," a new play, is announced as the opening attraction at the Wilbur beginning Monday, August 9th.

Gloria Swanson in "Fine Manners" will be the film feature at the Metropolitan, starting Saturday, August 14th.

Mae Murray to Be "Valencia" Star

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS.
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 3.—"Valencia" is destined for the movies. After a series of conferences at M. G. M. it has been decided to make this a second "Merry Widow," starring Mae Murray.

Now about the story, which, of course, is contained only in the brief words of the song. Dimitri Buchowetzki, who will direct Miss Murray, is collaborating on the scenario with Alice Duer Miller.

It is their purpose to weave a tale similar to "The Merry Widow," but with Southern Spain the locale, with plenty of color and romance to give the picture a worthwhile atmosphere.

Certainly no song in years has enjoyed the popular vogue of "Valencia." Both abroad and in America it is the favorite dancing music. Just the name, "Valencia," in electric lights will be enough to bring people into the theatre.

I was told by an M. G. M. official that no money will be spared to make this a big production and that the scenario being discussed has infinite promise. Actual "shooting" will be started this month, so you can see "Valencia" is already really under way.

I CAN BEAR WITNESS THAT MONTE BLUE has earned the three weeks' vacation allowed him by Warner Brothers. For the last five weeks he has labored in the most strenuous scenes in "Across the Pacific," doing rough and tumble acts that would do credit to the most agile Mack Sennett comedian.

Monte is traveling up North to recuperate from all this strenuous experience, and to get in readiness for his next Warner Brothers' picture, which will be "Bitter Apples," adapted from a story by Harold McGrath.

BETTY JEWELL, WHO HAS THE DISTINCTION of being discovered by David Wark Griffith some years ago and who since has been seen in various pictures, sometimes in bits sometimes in large parts, is about to come into her own.

She has been engaged for the sole feminine lead in "We're in the Navy Now," featuring Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton.

John McDermott is expected in Hollywood to write the story for "We're in the Navy Now."

CHARLES (BUDDY) ROGERS gets the male lead in "Wings." He plays the role of the heroic young aviator, whose exploits will provide the background for one of Famous Players-Lasky's most pretentious films.

Eddie Cantor

He had planned to make another picture before his return to New York but his doctors frowned on that with a grave admonition that he pay attention to his health.

Now about Rogers. It is interesting to note he is a graduate of the Paramount school of acting. A year ago he was an under-graduate in one of our well known colleges and had never played in the movies. Today he is looked upon as one of the most likely of the coming young leading men.

That he has made good in the films in which he has been cast is proof positive that a school of screen acting, sponsored by the right people, can be put on a practical working basis.

EDDIE CANTOR SENDS ME a telegram that he is leaving for Big Bear Lake to rest. His picture making, following his strenuous theatrical season, made a vacation at this time absolutely imperative.

DANCE REVUE AT ORPHEUM

Heading the stage attractions at Loew's Orpheum is the Allyn Mann Revue, a clever song and dance potpourri with Wally Crisham and the Anora Sisters as the principal performers. Sid Lewis, as "The Original Nut," performs in a manner that delights the audience. Another comedy hit is the one-act playlet "Perfect Day." Other acts were: Furnan & Evans, songsters, well received heavily; Hector & Cooper, a pair of terpsichoreans of extraordinary cleverness and the Lamont Girls, a novelty act, featuring the "Girl Without Nerves."

The photoplay is "The Golden Web," an E. Phillips Oppenheim story with Irene Rich, Huntley Gordon and Jay Hunt in the leading roles. It is a well directed, well acted and interesting tale of the struggle of a man for social and financial success. It recites how his constant fight for these elusive "rainbows" nearly cost him his life's happiness. Short picture subjects complete the bill.

FIND ARCHBISHOP HAS NO AUTHORITY IN U. S.

Allentown, Pa., Aug. 3 (A.P.)—Archbishop Germanos has no canonical authority over the Greek Orthodox Church in America, Judge Claude T. Reno of the Lehigh Court, held in an opinion in a case in which a congregation was unable to agree on the choice of a pastor.

The Archbishop was said to be attempting to unite all the Syrian Orthodox churches in America with himself as the highest officer.

FISKE O'HARA AT STATE

Fiske O'Hara, American balladist, romantic actor, and, incidentally, a Boston product, was welcomed to his native city yesterday when he appeared on the stage at Loew's State to start a week's engagement.

With his repertoire of songs, Mr. O'Hara was forced to respond to several encores. Included in the songs he offered are "Be Sure and Kiss the Blarney Stone," "Little Man," "Just An Old, Old Farm, on a High, High Hill," "Just a Cottage Small by a Waterfall" and "Mother Asthore." With these, he told several stories in his own inimitable manner.

The feature screen offering was "Lew Tyler's Wives," a picturization of the book by Wallace Irwin. It is a drama of domestic appeal and its theme is quite interestingly handled. Ruth Clifford and Frank Mayo have the stellar roles and their portrayals are convincing. Hoot Gibson in "The Man in the Saddle" is also shown.

MAN AND WOMAN SLAIN FROM PURSUING AUTO

Cincinnati, Aug. 3 (A.P.)—A woman identified by Clermount County officials as Mrs. Manlo King of Chilo, and an unidentified man about 50 years of age, were shot to death by the occupants of an automobile that pursued the one in which they were riding on the Atlantic and Pacific Highway near Chilo.

Chilo is on the Ohio River, 40 miles east of Cincinnati.

CLARA BOW IN METROPOLITAN TRIUMPH

"Mantrap" Gives Star Rare Opportunity to Portray Flirting Maniourist

There are vamps and vamps, but it remained for Clara Bow in "Mantrap," at the Metropolitan, to give a warm, human touch to the role of the natural-born flirt, a role frequently essayed but seldom played with such happy results.

Wisely directed, skilfully acted by a cast of notable players, "Mantrap" will strike the most phlegmatic audience as a picture that is decidedly "different." Victor Fleming has done much to bring to the screen Lewis' trenchant humor without in any way deviating from the theme with its gradual sweep of dramatic power.

Ernest Torrence, as Joe Easter, the slow, gentle, kindly Joe, the backwoods woman who leaves the Canadian wilds to marry and bring back from the city a sprightly, effervescent and serendipity - imbibing manicure girl, gives one of the most finished performances of his career. Percy Marmont, not to be outdone, is a convincing lawyer, girl-shy and slightly bewildered. Eugene Pallette, as the vacationist authority on canoeing, is reminiscent of Babbitt himself.

The story itself is the tale of two men and a girl—the old triangle, of course, but worked out in a manner that reflects nothing but glory on Fleming who until now has sighed for something worth his talents. The camera shots are worthy of the Germans, so unused they are and so unobtrusively they tell the story. "Seashore Frolics" is the title of the Paul Oscard production which graces the stage. It has two capable "sister" teams, some crack banjo playing by Rex Schepp, Johnny Daly, a nimble dancer, and a bathing beauty parade which softens the most critical eye.

Dancing and comedy features an excellent Summer bill at Keith's. Albertina Rasch and the "Eight Albertina Rasch Dancers" headline the program with a fast, snappy offering featuring "Toe Rhythm," as catchy a novelty as has been seen here in some time.

Moss and Frye, with their inimitable "How High Is Up?" are back again with the same material but as refreshing and laugh provoking as ever. Jay Dillon and Bettie Parker present the usual song and dance act as do Tom McRae and Adelaide Mott. The Wyoming Duo, Bert Rule and Johnny O'Brien, Oakes and Delour, Kharum, Lamont Trio, Aesop's Fables, Topics of the Day and Pathe News complete the program.

BRIGHT FARCE CLOSING YEAR AT COPLEY

"Meet the Wife" Witty in Dialogue With Roles Well-Handled

As a last crowning achievement before ringing down the curtain on an unusually active Summer season, the Copley Theatre presents Lynn Starling's three-act farce, "Meet the Wife"—the brightest and smartest play of their entire year.

Perfectly cast for the company and brilliantly acted throughout, it constitutes the best evening's entertainment in many a long, hard-working week of repertory. With none of the rules of motion common to the development of so many efforts in farce, "Meet the Wife" glides along smoothly and swiftly and lapses off neatly without trying to jolt the audience into "that final guffaw" often striven for in the works of the boisterous drama.

Instead of the painfully familiar overstressed farcical figures, the characters are sketched sharply and accurately and are modeled after creatures of flesh and blood in everyday life rather than as grinding cogs in the wheels of machine-made theatricality.

The dialogue is keenly witty and sophisticated to a degree, but

There are but six principal roles and each is expertly handled. Jasmine Newcomb, now returned after some weeks' absence, carries the heaviest burden of the performance with a "meddling marm" part that in less skillful hands might prove more annoying than amusing, but she portrays her character with ease and grace.

Visits Home City

FISKE O'HARA

Fiske O'Hara, famous balladist, who got his first start in life as a bundle boy in a Boston department store, is back in his native city, and will sing over the radio tomorrow through station WEEI.

His melodious tenor voice that was heard on the stage in all parts of the country, will be broadcast from the Houghton & Dutton studio. It was in the rug department of the Houghton & Dutton store that O'Hara started as a bundle boy. Radio listeners will hear several of his favorite songs and stories.

He returns to Boston as one of the feature attractions of Loew's State Theatre, in a series of Irish songs.

His radio program will begin tomorrow afternoon at 4:15. Tomorrow evening he will give a special program at the theatre for his old associates and friends.

GIRL NABBED IN ACID BLINDING

Mattapoisett, Aug. 3.—John Silva of this town is blinded, probably permanently, by creosote, thrown, according to the police, into his eyes by Mary Bowen, Providence hairdresser, sweetheart of Silva's son.

The woman was arrested today by the Providence police. According to the story told the police, the Bowen woman came to Mattapoisett last night to see young Silva, but instead the senior Silva went to the door and berated the woman for her affair with his son.

She retaliated, according to the police, by blinding him.

"DOUGHBOY" IS STILL BACKBONE OF ARMY

Indianapolis, Aug. 3 (A.P.)—The "doughboy" continues to be the backbone of the army, says an article by Major-General J. G. Harbord retired, appearing today in the August issue of the American Legion Monthly.

The author refers to a report of the general staff in 1872 which reached the conclusion that "man remains the fundamental instrument in battle" and fights "with greater efficiency on foot, not on horseback, in a tank, airplane or fixed fortification."

If you find your name listed on the Classified pages you are entitled to $5.00 worth of passes for Revere Beach.

GENERAL EVANS DEAD IN ITALY

Florence, Italy, Aug. 3 (A.P.)—Brigadier General Robert K. Evans, U. S. A., retired, is dead at Cortalloni. The body will be brought to Rome, where he had lived for a number of years.

General Evans was born at Jackson, Miss., Nov. 19, 1852, and was graduated from West Point in 1875. He served in the Nez Perce and Bannock Indian campaigns, in 1877-78; in the Spanish American War in Cuba and later in the Philippines. He was assistant to the chief of staff in 1911-12, and at various times held commands in the Department of the Gulf, with headquarters at Atlantic Department of the East, and on the Mexican border.

OIL BLAST BURNS $8,000 FARMHOUSE

Paxton, Aug. 3 (A.P.)—The smouldering foundations of the Henry Walbridge farmhouse on the Worcester road and a few outbuildings were all that remained after fire had been extinguished at the farm early today.

An explosion of an oil stove used for drying wall paper caused a blaze which destroyed the house with a loss of $8,000. George A. Hair of Worcester was the owner.

PELTON SLEUTH OFFICE OPEN

William H. Pelton, recently retired from the Boston police department with the rank of inspector after a brilliant record of thirty years, today opened a detective agency at No. 10 State street, Suite 410-413. The agency will be known as the Pelton Detective Service, Inc.

For fifteen years preceding his retirement from the police department Pelton was in charge of the shoplifters' squad. His most famous coup was the capture of Robert Davies, the "Boy Broker," who fleeced Bostonians of thousands of dollars. Pelton trailed Davies to South America and arrested him after spotting him asleep on a park bench.

His new offices were bedecked today with numerous floral tributes from police department friends, many of whom paid Pelton a personal visit to offer felicitations.

Charles F. Gillis, who has served twenty years with one of the world's largest detective agencies, will be executive superintendent of the new agency.

You are entitled to $5.00 worth of passes for Revere Beach if your name appears on the Classified pages.

COOLIDGE BACK HOME SOON

White Pines Camp, N. Y., Aug. 3 (I.N.S.).—President Coolidge will leave his Summer White House here tomorrow for his birthplace at Plymouth, Vt., where he plans to spend from two days to a week.

Paul Smith's, N. Y., Aug 3 (A.P.).—Reviewing accomplishments of his administration of the national government, President Coolidge on the fourth anniversary of his assuming the Presidency let it be known today that he considered the last three years the most prosperous of any similar period in the history of the country.

While recognizing material prosperity is not the only object to be sought by a country, it was said Mr. Coolidge felt a sound business condition was a fundamental consideration to the accomplishments of progress in all other directions.

An important factor in the present prosperity, the President believes, is the caution and wisdom with which business men have conducted their affairs, refraining from overextension and also from heavy borrowing in financing their enterprises.

The President was said to be desirous of doing all possible to assure the success of the Geneva conference for arms limitation. Officials said he would consider unfortunate any action looking toward any other limitation conference which might become a detriment to the success of the Geneva conference.

Proctor L. Dougherty was appointed a commissioner of the District of Columbia by President Coolidge today, succeeding Frederick A. Fenning. Mr. Dougherty is executive representative of the vice-president of the Otis Elevator Company in Washington.

Born in Cambridge, Mass., in 1873, the son of Rev. and Mrs. M. A. Dougherty, he was graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and went to Washington as an engineer in the office of the supervising architect, Treasury Department.

BUILDS CASTLE FOR VISIT OF PRINCESS

International Falls, Minn., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—When the Princess Marie of Spain arrives here soon on her visit to the R. G. Dahlberg family at their Summer home on a lovely Rainy Lake island, she will be more than surprised at the beautiful residence she is to occupy.

The Chicago millionaire has had 26 carpenters constructing a miniature castle similar to the old castles of Spain. The Princess, a cousin of King Alfonzo, arrived in New York Friday.

CHARGES STATE MAY RUN EL

Predicting that a bill would be presented to the next Legislature seeking to have all control that the City Council now exercises over the Elevated in Boston transferred to the State Public Utilities Commission and calling upon the representatives of the Council to watch out was the basis of an attack on the State body by City Councillor Robert Gardner Wilson, Jr., of Dorchester.

Councillor Wilson flayed the Elevated for abandoning various car lines in Boston, especially those in his district which takes in the greater part of the Codman Square section of Dorchester.

He had passed a request seeking the opinion of the city law department on the authority of the Elevated to remove car service and tracks without public hearing before the Public Utilities Commission.

He charged that if the Utilities Commission had authority of the granting of bus licenses in Boston that the Elevated would have a terminus at the busy corner of Tremont and School streets.

16 TURKISH LEADERS ARRAIGNED IN PLOT

Constantinople, Aug. 3 (A.P.)—Sixteen prominent members of the Committee of Union and Progress are on trial at Angora charged with plotting against the government. Among them are David Bey, Dr. Nazim Bey and Azmi Bey, who was director of police during the World War; Mehat Chukri Bey, Turkey's foremost newspaper editor, who was banished in 1924 for opposing the government.

Ten years' imprisonment has been asked by the prosecutor for 50 other defendants.

MAY DENY KISS TO 'CANDY KID'

Baltimore, Md., Aug 3 (Universal).—Richard Reese Whittemore, the "super thug," may not be allowed to kiss his young wife goodbye before he goes to the scaffold August 13 to pay the penalty for killing Robert Holtman, penitentiary guard, it was announced by Patrick Brady, penitentiary warden.

The Tiger Girl and the thug's father may visit him three times a week, but always with a guard present. And the girl, who fought so valiantly to save her husband's life, may not even touch his hand on these visits.

AVIATION HEAD LEARNS TO FLY

Washington, Aug. 3.—In order to be able to do what he may order others to do, F. Trubee Davison, in charge of aviation in the War Department, is learning to fly all over again.

Nine years ago Davison was keenly interested in flying but gave it up after dropping into the water off Long Island and was badly injured. In his new position, however, the millionaire New Yorker believes it essential to keep in active touch with flying.

POPE RECEIVES MORRIS GEST

Rome, Aug. 3 (Universal).—Morris Gest was received in private audience by the Pope and by Premier Mussolini before his departure for a visit to Gabriele D'Annunzio.

The theatrical magnate said his "highest ambition was realized when he met Pope Pius, whose very countenance bespeaks saintliness."

Gest presented Premier Mussolini with an edition de luxe of "The Miracle," an appropriate gift, according to Gest, "for the man who has performed miracles in the regeneration of Italy."

FRENCH GENERAL AND FAMILY VISIT HARVARD

The military attache from the French Embassy, Gen. Dumont, accompanied by his wife and daughter, spent several hours at the exhibit of the Haskka glass flowers during their visit to Harvard.

Gen. Dumont's daughter is a student of botany and the exhibit of the glass flowers was an especial attraction to her for this reason. The General and his family left for Washington soon after leaving Harvard.

COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Hingham Plans to Help Children's Hospital

HINGHAM RALLIES TO the good cause of the Children's Hospital of Boston with much ingenuity and untold energy. A Juniors' Club, newly organized and proceeding under the direction of Mrs. Frederick B. Taylor, is arranging an evening of moving pictures for August 9 at Loring Hall.

THUS HINGHAM JOINS the crusade of the children all up and down the North and South Shores, from Gloucester to Bussards Bay, in an effort to help the little sufferers of the hospital who are mended and made well through its cheery hem. Each Juniors' Club hopes to maintain one or more beds at the hospital.

BOYS AND GIRLS of the club just formed are: Carol Howard, Louise F. Taylor, Virginia Beals, Lucretia Green, and Sarah Swift (the last named carrying vice-president honors), Stephen Ward, Frederick Cole, Leonard Dunn and Paul Dunn, and many others are being recruited.

MRS. C. P. CURTIS, Jr. An ardent worker for the Children's Hospital, announces a new Junior Club just formed in Hingham to aid the good cause.

PATRONAGE AND SUPPORT from a matron quota is encouraging the young people in their efforts. Mesdames Charles T. Howard, Herbert A. Cole, George A. Dunn, C. G. Ward, Prescott G. Beales, Rodman Swift, George A. Cole, Gardner Swan, Nathaniel F. Emmons, Harold Plimpton, Francis A. Boggs, Frederick Turner and James W. Rollins are serving thus.

THE CLUB CHOOSES for its name "The Lady of the Lamp," in honor of Florence Nightingale. And their goal, of raising one hundred dollars to found a bed at the hospital will be most adequately reached by the evening of moving pictures, judging by the advance interest stirred up.

THE DEBUT OF MISS LUCRETIA BUSH, 17-year-old Boston songstress, on the operatic stage, will be watched with much interest by her Boston family connections—notably those consistent art patrons, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jackson Holmes, and Mrs. W. Scott Fitz.

VIGOROUS AND ATHLETIC, with much natural beauty (she is the dark-eyed, dark-haired type), Miss Bush brings to her approaching debut a background of vivacity and animation combined with years of unbroken study.

NOT FOR HER THE FRIVOLITIES of a debutante season, but arduous preparation for coming triumphs. And for her first appearance, with the San Carlo opera company at the Opera House in October, much is predicted. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sturgis Bush of Chestnut Hill.

FOR HER OPERATIC career she uses her family name of Goddard. Just now she is a guest at the West Chop, Martha's Vineyard, home of Mrs. W. A. Spalding, but returns to town almost at once to resume preparations for the auspicious day.

SOCIETY WITH ITS SHOULDER to the wheel promises to make memorable the celebration, tomorrow evening, of the Trinity Church anniversary. Everyone in the colony is either to be a participant in one or another of the tableaux, or has reservations.

NEWEST ON THE LIST of episodes is a World War number. Maids and matrons representing nations in the great conflict are the Misses Barbara Sands, Katharine Howard, Natalie Willard, Anna Burr Auchincloss, Elizabeth Robinson, Elizabeth Johnston and Rita Dolan.

MESDAMES HUGH D. AUCHINCLOSS, Roland Dickson, George T. Brokaw and Robert Potter are the matrons enrolled. Mrs. Morrie de Peyster is the "Greatest Mother of the World," and Miss Ruth Yarnell does "Peace." It's all to be very brilliant and colorful, with the Newport Arts Association as setting.

THE BARONESS GERTRUDE VON BOECKLIN, Newport guest of Miss Julia Berwind, has departed from the city by the Sea for Bryn Mawr, Pa., there to be the house guest of Mrs. Robert E. Strawbridge, at 1 Meadow Lodge. Mrs. Strawbridge is mother of the former Anita Strawbridge, who married William Grosvenor and lived for a season or so in Cambridge.

PRIMARIES IN FIVE STATES

Kansas City, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—A haze of campaign oratory on prohibition, the Ku Klux Klan, World Court, farm relief and varied sectional issues lifted today over four Western and one Southern States as voters invaded primary election polling places to select National Convensional and State office nominees in Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, West Virginia and Montana.

In Missouri, Oklahoma and Kansas nominations will be made for the United States senatorship. The three incumbents, all Republicans, George H. Williams, Missouri; John W. Harreld, Oklahoma, and Charles Curtis, Kansas, seek renomination. With no Senatorial contests in Montana, voters will make nominations for the State's two seats in the National House of Representatives, while West Virginia will choose nominees for the six Congressional posts.

TWO STATE TICKETS.

Oklahoma and Kansas parties have complete State tickets, more than 1,000 office seekers being registered under five banners. In Missouri there are but a few of the lesser State offices to be filled. Montana and West Virginia slates call for election of half the membership of the State Senate and the entire lower house personnel, as well as numerous county and district officers.

With the wet and dry debate the outstanding issue, seven candidates are out for the long and short term Missouri senatorial nominations. Senator Williams is seeking both nominations and has declined to make prohibition an issue. Blodgett Priest of St. Louis, an avowed wet, opposes him for the short term, while Priest and David Proctor of Kansas City, a dry, are Williams' opponents for the long term.

"WET" OUT FOR CONGRESS.

The Democratic Senatorial nomination for both terms is sought by Congressman Harry G. B. Hawes of St. Louis, a wet. He is opposed for the short term by Willis H. Mardith of Poplar Bluff and Robert I. Young of St. Joseph and for the long term by Young and Judge Ewing Cockrel of Warrensburg.

A Ku Klux Klan debate has been the feature of an otherwise listless Kansas campaign, with the Republican candidates for the attorney-generalship and the Secretary of State opposing a referendum to place the klan on a legal basis in the State. Six Republicans and two Democrats are out for the office vacated by Congressman J. N. Tincher, Republican, of the Seventh District.

U. S. 'DRY' LAW FOLLOWS FLAG

Washington, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—The law follows the flag, Attorney-General Sargent holds, and American vessels anywhere are subject to the prohibition law.

This view was made known today at the Department of Justice where it was explained the opinion was given recent substantiation by the Circuit Court of Appeals.

The opinion was hailed by both prohibition and coast guard officials as of material aid in the war on rum runners. Although most of these fly foreign flags, it was believed the moral force of the decision would be effective against the ocean bootleggers.

Department of Justice officials pointed out also that captains of American vessels were empowered to act against violators on board their ships inside or out of the three-mile limit—anywhere.

CELTIC AND CEDRIC TO BE CABIN SHIPS

Conversion to cabin carriers of the well known liners Celtic and Cedric of the White Star Line's Boston-Liverpool service will take place in the Autumn, G. F. Ravenel, Boston manager of the line, announced yesterday.

Under the new arrangement, which will become operative with the sailing of the Cedric from Boston November 7, these ships will continue to carry three classes of passengers but they will be cabin, tourist third, and third, instead of first, second and third class as at present. All the space now devoted to first class will become cabin, while the second class accommodations will be turned over to tourist third. A large sum was spent in rebuilding the second class space on both ships last year, when a new and elaborate second class lounge was constructed on each promenade deck.

The Adriatic and Baltic, also of the White Star Line, between New York and Liverpool, will continue to carry first, second and third class passengers.

BRITISH PIONEER IN SOUTH AFRICA DEAD

Cape Town, South Africa, Aug. 3 (A.P.)—John Zavier Merriman, one of South Africa's leading statesmen, died today.

He was a member of Cape Parliament for Namaqualand. He was born in Somersetshire, Eng., in 1841, went to South Africa in 1346, and was Prime Minister and Treasurer of the South African government in 1904-1910.

Brattleboro Man Paroled

Montpelier, Vt., Aug. 3.—George Howe of Brattleboro has been paroled by Governor Franklin S. Billings after serving about half of two sentences imposed on the charge of grand larceny.

'Peeper's' Alibi Wins

New York, Aug. 3.—Edward Vevlin, arrested for peering into the room of Mrs. Margaret Palmer, testified he was a sleep-walker and couldn't help his night wanderings. The court discharged him.

Falls 30 Feet

Worcester, Aug. 3.—Ray Brondville, 25, of No. 17 Oread street, is in City Hospital in serious condition after a fall of 30 feet from the roof of his house, where he was fixing a radio aerial.

SENATOR CUMMINS PAID TRIBUTE TO PARENTS

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 3 (A.P.)—A desire to pay a tribute to his parents prompted Senator Albert B. Cummins to start an autobiography, the introduction of which was begun before his death here Friday.

In the manuscript, now in possession of his daughter, Mrs. Hollis A. Rawson, of Des Moines, the Senator wrote:

"I was born on the fifteenth day of February, 1850, in a respectable log house about a mile and a half east of Carmichaels, Green County, Pennsylvania. My father, Thomas Layton Cummins, was a carpenter—the hardest working and most upright man I have ever known. It seems to render a tribute to my father that moved me to write something about my life and whose ever gratification I feel in this will arise chiefly to make those who come after me acquainted with father and mother."

With only a few paragraphs complete, the manuscript is now a family treasure.

SPEED ACTRESS' DEATH TRIAL

Mount Holly, N. J., Aug. 3 (A.P.)—A speedy trial is being arranged for Betty Queen, chorus girl, held without bail, charged with the murder of her chum, Margaret Craig, at Brown Mills Sunday night. Edward H. Levis, foreman of the Grand Jury, said he would ask that the jury be called in special session.

The police believe Miss Craig, whose stage name was Pearl McSherry, was shot accidentally while trying to prevent Miss Queen from committing suicide with a shotgun.

$2,500 MORE TO FUND FOR COMEAU FAMILY

The sum of $2,500 was added to the estate of the late Patrolman Frank Comeau of Dorchester who was shot and killed in the performance of his duty a few months ago, when the City Council passed unanimously Councillor George F. Gilbody's order appropriating the same.

The authority for so doing was placed in the hands of the council by action of the Legislature and will be paid to the administrator of the Comeau estate as soon as the Mayor places his approval on the same, which is expected today.

AUTOIST ARRESTED AFTER HITTING GIRL

Pittsfield, Aug. 3.—Bessie Andreasio, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Andreasio, is in a serious condition at Fairview Hospital, Great Barrington, with a fractured skull suffered when she was run over by an automobile driven by Joseph Carlotto of Housatonic. Carlotto was charged with operating an automobile so as to endanger the lives and safety of the public, in Great Barrington District Court.

Miss McSherry gave her own life to save her friend.

NEED 'OF MORE TRAINED MEN IN AGRICULTURE

Washington, Aug. 3 (A.P.)—More trained men and women are needed in agriculture to meet its problems, in the opinion of Secretary Jardine, who declared today this was an integral part of any sound program for the permanent betterment of the farm situation.

"The enrollment in agricultural courses diminished 26 per cent. from 1914-15 to 1925-26," he said. "First, there was the war, which drew a vast number of young men into the army and into essential industries. Then the period of post-war prosperity made many hesitate to leave money-making work. The agricultural depression shortly thereafter produced a general tendency away from preparation for farming."

TOPS BEAUTIES OF LYNNFIELD

Disproving the old familiar saying about "pretty babies," Miss Kathryn Walsh of "Edgemere," Lynnfield, who won a baby beauty prize at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in 1915, captured first honors as "Miss Lynnfield" at the American Legion ball and beauty contest in Lynnfield Centre town hall.

"Miss Lynnfield" is sixteen years old, a junior at Lynn Classical High school, and the daughter of Attorney and Mrs. Peter J. Walsh, her father being a well known lawyer of Lynn. She won out over nearly 100 competitors and when she was awarded a bouquet of American beauties and a candy prize, her friends recalled her previous triumph as a baby at the San Francisco World Fair.

TURPENTINE, BENZENE USED FOR LIQUOR

Norton, Aug. 3. — "Distilled benzene and turpentine." Reading State policemen and Constable George L. Smith swear this is what they found being manufactured here on the old Richmond estate as the latest brand of high-powered hooch.

When the raiders entered the barn of the estate in the Ballardville section they found a $20,000 outfit. It consisted of a 35-horse-power boiler, with pipe coils connecting three copper tanks. One had a capacity of 1,000 gallons and the others 250 gallons each.

Three hundred gallons of the finished product was discovered, but the raiders decided to forego the pleasure of sampling it. They also confiscated 200 gallons of the stuff ready for distillation, which they rounded "pure benzene and turpentine."

RETIREMENT PAY INCREASE SOUGHT

Members of the City Men's Union have adopted resolutions calling upon the State Branch of the A. F. of L. to assist them in obtaining a change in the amount of money they will receive under the Boston retirement act. The act specifies that they shall receive a minimum of $480 annually upon retirement. They desire to have this raised to half pay.

MINISTER RESIGNS TO TAKE UP LIBRARY WORK

MANY ATTEND DENTAL CLINIC

As a result of the large number of wage-earners and family heads attending the Monday evening sessions of the dental clinic of the Boston Dispensary, in the future treatments will also be given on Friday nights.

More than forty persons were given dental attention in the first three sessions of the clinic. Moderate fees are charged in order to meet the needs of the small income—the primary purpose of the newly founded evening clinic.

Dr. Charles M. Proctor is dental-surgeon-in-chief. He is assisted by Dr. Francis Daley, oral surgery instructor at Tufts Dental School, and by Dr. F. S. Tobben, also of Tufts. Prophylactic treatments are given by Miss Florence L. Arnold, of the Forsythe Dental School.

Appointments for treatments may be made at the office of the Boston Dispensary at No. 23 Bennet street.

Watch Your Breakfast

Eat food that supplies "balanced" ration after night's fast

HOW you feel all morning depends largely on what you eat for breakfast. Thousands have unenergetic forenoons because of wrong breakfast eating.

To feel right, you must have a well-balanced, complete breakfast ration. At most other meals—lunch and dinner—you get it. But breakfast is hurried, often badly chosen.

Thus Quaker Oats, containing 16% protein, food's great tissue builder; 58% carbohydrate, its great energy element, plus all-important vitamines and the "bulk" that makes laxatives seldom needed, is the dietetic urge of the world today.

It is food that "stands by" you through the morning.

Don't deny yourself the natural stimulation this rich food offers you.

Get Quaker Oats today. Grocers have two kinds: Quick Quaker, which cooks in 3 to 5 minutes, and Quaker Oats.

A Thrilling Story of Night Life and Night Clubs; A Mad Whirl of Adventure

Joslyn Poe, daughter of a proud, but impoverished Virginia family, wants a career, not marriage. Her mother wants her to wed. The wild blood of a line of daring women runs in her veins. She wants adventure. A seeress tells her of the "wildness" in her blood. She goes to a dance. She determines she will settle her problem that night—to marry George Rawson, well-to-do, but no dandy, or—go to New York in seek of adventure. She meets a stranger at the dance.

Milton Stein, the stranger, advises Joslyn to go to the city and to dance. Joslyn, hungry and discouraged, is heard weeping by Kittie Lane, a manicurist. Kittie gets Lee Rogers, a friend, to invite them to dinner.

While the girls are at the table with Rogers, James Kelvin, movie star, attempts to cultivate Joslyn's acquaintance There is a near row with Rogers. Kelvin goes away leaving with Joslyn a sense of some strange influence over her. A few days afterward Kittie is brought home blind from bad booze. Joslyn rushes to Stein's Academy to take a job as a "Taxi Dancer" to care for Kittie. In the academy she meets Stephen Bates, a man-about-town, who offers to go to Kittie's help.

Kittie's life and sight are saved by the doctors secured by Bates. They both go to a party at Bates'. Kelvin is there. He kills Bates in a quarrel.

Kittie saves Joslyn by telling the police that the death row was over her.

With Kelvin hiding in her apartment Joslyn is called by the district attorney. She bests him. Police watch her flat. She quarrels with Lee Rogers.

When Lee offers to help her with cash, without strings, Joslyn has a change of heart.

Joslyn yields to Kelvin. He stirs her deeply.

Joslyn, willing to care for Kelvin and herself, loses her job as a Taxi Dancer.

Joslyn, hard up, meets the rich Brierhalter. He likes her.

CHAPTER XIV.

BRIERHALTER'S declaration of his regard for her pierced Joslyn's feelings like a slender steel blade. Emotionally she was undisturbed, but she was conscious of a cutting pain, a sharp twinge of uneasiness.

"I've found you now," he repeated. "Tell me, am I too late?"

"I don't know what you mean," she evaded.

Swiftly intuitive, she knew her hour had come—the test of her mercenary determination to wring from Life—from New York—immediate loot . . . money. The whole circumstances surrounding her appearance at the Club Bombay with Kittie had been a bold challenge; it's acceptance had come more quickly than she expected.

"I mean, am I too late—are you tied up with somebody else?" the Wall Street man asked her frankly. "Because, if you are, it means you will have to get untied."

Brierhalter's manner was not boastful; he stated & conclusion with the calm confidence of a man accustomed to arriving at facts. Something in his confidence unsettled Joslyn; it was as though she had been drawn into some contest against a player with unbeatable skill.

"Do you always talk this way, at first meetings?" she asked defensively.

"Let's not waste time with the usual pretenses," he responded, pleasantly firm. "You know, after all, we're grown up people and, at least, partly civilized. What the world needs is a wholesome dose

LOVE FEUD BACK OF 3 DEATHS

Blissfield, Mich., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—A number of leads today confronted officials attempting to unravel the mystery centering about the deaths of John Bogar, aged fifty, his daughter, Agnes, twenty-five, and the latter's five-year-old daughter, Amelia, whose bodies were found in their farm home near here yesterday.

Bogar's body was found hanging by the neck from a rope in the kitchen and those of the woman and child in a bed room. The child had been poisoned. There were marks on the woman's body indicating she had been beaten. She also had been poisoned.

Bogar and the daughter had been at odds because she refused to break with her fiance, Joe Smitka, to whom he objected, neighbors told police. Smitka and the woman planned to be married shortly, police learned, and Bogar became enraged when he heard of their plans Friday, threatening to kill his daughter rather than have her become Smitka's wife. Smitka visited the Bogar home Friday night in company with three other men and was ejected by the father.

CUT IN OCEAN FARES FOR VETS APPROVED

Washington, Aug. 3 (A.P.)—Preferential rates recommended by the Fleet Corporation for Allan World War Veterans who desire to take advantage of the new law facilitating their return to the United States have been approved by the Shipping Board.

On United States lines from Bremen, Cherbourg and Southampton, between October 1 and June 30, third and tourist class rates will be cut from $100 to $85, second class rates $135 to $55, and cabin and first class rates about 50 per cent.

WILL BURY EDITOR IN MAINE BIRTHPLACE

The funeral of Alfred Bartlett, well known publisher of No. 70 Franklin street, who died, will be held tomorrow at Bartlett Farm, Eliot, Me., his birthplace. Mr. Bartlett was 56 years old, the son of the late James W. and Caroline Goodwin Bartlett. He prepared for college at Berwick Academy (Me.), and was graduated from Dartmouth in 1894. For many years he was editor and publisher of the Cornhill Booklet and other publications.

To Put Wires Under

Webster, Aug. 3.—Town officials are formulating plans for elimination of all overhead electric wires.

PAROLE BREAKER PETTED

Sweetheart Bids a Loving Farewell to West End House Robber

Stalking out of Judge William Sullivan's session of Municipal Court, where he had been sent back to State prison for violation of parole, Warren McCann, arrested recently on charges of breaking and entering, was embraced an caressed today by an unidentified woman, believed by police to be his sweetheart.

The woman, who refused to give her name, stepped from behind a pillar and threw her arms around the prisoner, kissing him profusely.

Officers who had McCann in their custody, stood aside, while the woman bade an affectionate farewell to the prisoner and admonished him to "be a good boy" 'and shorten his term. Warren waved his hand with a cheery, "so long," as he was led away.

Warren was charged with thefts from two persons at No. 5 Lynde street, West End. Police say his plan was to rent a room and ransack the house while the proprietor was engaged.

Fingerprints disclosed the fact that he was paroled from State Prison and has two and one-half years to serve for a previous offense.

SANDERS OUT IN ANOTHER WEEK

Much relieved after a physical examination disclosed that he was not dangerous ill, Everett Sanders, secretary to President Coolidge was resting comfortably at the Carey Hill Hospital, Brookline today.

Secretary Sanders came to Boston at the suggestion of Major Coupal, the President's personal physician, to be examined by Dr. Arthur L. Chute, Back Bay specialist. The latter said there was a possibility that Sanders would be able to return to the Summer White House in a week.

WANTS FLAG STATION AT GRANITE AVENUE

Senator William L. Hennessey filed with the Department of Public Utilities a petition for the location of a flag station at Granite avenue on the lines of the New Haven railroad, provided the utilities department grants the permit of the company for a discontinuance of the Shawmut branch. There was a flag station at Granite avenue many years ago, Senator Hennessey says, and its restoration now would be a great convenience to residents of that section.

JOLSON DENIES HE'S DIVORCED

Comedian, in Paris, Claims Neither He Nor Wife Have Filed Suit

Paris, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Al Jolson today denied that either he or his wife, Mrs. Alma Osborne Jolson, had gotten a divorce in Paris.

He also denied that either he or Mrs. Jolson had entered suit for divorce.

Mrs. Jolson, who accompanied the comedian on a trip to Paris last month, left suddenly for the United States on the Berengaria last Saturday. Jolson, who remained behind, plans to sail on August 10.

Friends of the Jolsons said that Mrs. Jolson had not left any explanation of her sudden decision to cut short her stay in France.

AUTOS KILL 16 TOTS IN JULY

Sixteen children were killed on State highways during July, but only eight of these fatalities were in cities conducting safety campaigns in playgrounds, according to the announcement today of the Massachusetts Safety Council.

The Safety Council cites a further argument for safety campaigns in the fact that in 12 cities which are carrying on safety programs no child was killed during the month.

Elderly pedestrians and children of ten years or younger are in greatest danger, according to an analysis of fatalities by the Safety Council. One child was killed in Boston proper during the month and three died in accidents in the suburbs.

SISTER MARY CHRISTINE DIES IN HYDE PARK

Sister Mary Christina, of St. Rafael's Convent, Maple street, Hyde Park, is dead today, following a brief illness. She was a native of Newburyport, and for the past three years was teacher in the third grade of the convent school.

Funeral services will be held Thursday morning at the church of the Most Precious Blood, Hyde Park. Her mother, Mrs. Mary Picard of Newburyport, survives.

EX-CLERK HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Joseph T. Stephan, thirty-two, of No. 101 Monticair avenue, Wollaston, waived examination today when arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Storey at the Federal Building, charged with embezzlement of $11,000 from the Citizens' National Bank.

Stephan was arrested Friday when called to the bank to explain alleged fraudulent entries. His wife waited four hours in an automobile outside the bank under the impression he had been called to resume work, he having severed connections with the bank on July 9.

Commissioner Storey held him for the Grand Jury, convening August 16, reducing the bail from $20,000 to $15,000. Still in default of bail, Stephan was returned to the East Cambridge Jail.

EX-SLAVE NEAR STARVING IS HELD; HAD KIN IN HUB

New York, Aug. 3 (I.N.S.)—Found starving and exhausted on the street, Clara Pedja Banks, 87, formerly a slave, was in the custody of police today. They provided her with food and then held here on a charge of vagrancy. She was owned by John J. Wilson of King William County, Va. She told police that the last of her near relatives died recently in Boston.

3 BIG FIRMS TO QUIT CHELSEA IN FIGHT

Over-riding vigorous opposition of Chelsea residents and threats of three large Chelsea manufacturing concerns to leave the city, the Chelsea City Council voted today to grant a permit to the Eastern Terminal Corporation for erection of 34 fuel-oil tanks.

A stormy session, lasting eight hours, ending at 4 a. m., preceded the vote, which was 3 to 4 in favor of granting the permit.

The matter went to Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley, his signature being necessary before the grant is effective. The proposed tanks are to be built in Eastern avenue and will have a capacity of 500,000 barrels.

A 2,000-name petition was presented to the Council in opposition to the permit and speakers against it included representatives of the Forbes Lithograph Company, Everlastik, Inc., Revere Tube Company, Russell Box Company, the Chamber of Commerce and the Chelsea Rent and Taxpayers' Association.

If the tanks are erected taxes would increase so much as to make it necessary for their concerns to move from Chelsea, representatives of the Forbes Lithograph Company, Everlastik, Inc., and Revere Rubber Company declared.

When the meeting adjourned following the vote, angry opponents of the measure asserted they would start circulation of a "mammoth petition" on which an effort would be made to gather the signatures of a majority of residents of the city.

VETERAN MAYOR RESIGNS AS SOCIALISTS PROTEST

Paris, Aug. 3 (I.N.S.)—Edouard Herriot, after a term of nearly a quarter of a century, has resigned as mayor of Lyons. The resignation of M. Herriot came as the result of a protest by the Socialists of Lyons against his joining the Poincare Cabinet.

25,000 K. OF C. AT SESQUI

Philadelphia, Aug. 3 (A.P.)—Approximately 25,000 delegates from all States in the Union and from Canada, Mexico, Porto Rico, Cuba and Panama, are expected to attend the Knights of Columbus convention which will last until Thursday. It was opened with a solemn pontifical high mass at the Cathedral with Cardinal Dougherty officiating.

Two interesting personages attending the convention are Edward A. Hearn, in charge of the Knights of Columbus rehabilitation work in Europe, and Brother Barnabas of New Haven, Ct., who has charge of the order's work among boys.

Mr. Hearn characterized Mussolini as "the greatest statesman in the world today," adding that it was "too bad France did not have a man of his type to deliver that country from its present period of depression."

PRESIDENTIAL BID SEEN IN BORAH TOUR

Senator Will Attack World Court and Wets In Many States

Paul Smiths, N. Y., Aug. 3 (Universal).—From an eighty-six-year-old Confederate veteran, President Coolidge received an invitation to attend the unveiling of the Blue and Grey monument at Nashville, Tenn., this Fall.

Marcus B. Toney, full of pep and straight as an arrow, came up here to ask the President to deliver the dedication address at the $30,000 marble shaft which will commemorate the battles of Nashville and Franklin.

Toney is one of the few surviving members of the original Ku Klux Klan of carpet-bagging days. He served under Stonewall Jackson, he said, was finally captured at Spottsylvania, and in thirteen weeks imprisonment in a Union camp gained thirty pounds on bacon.

As the President was at White Pine Camp, four miles from the executive offices, Toney was obliged to leave his invitation with the President's attaches.

BORAH OFF ON TOUR.

Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, left here on a speaking tour, which political leaders regard as a bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

Although Borah's itinerary is still tentative and incomplete, in all probability it will take him into virtually every State in which World Court supporters are candidates for re-election.

The Idahoan's first stop will be in Chicago. He will confer with friends and party associates there with particular reference to the situation in the cornbelt, where an insistent demand for farm relief legislation continues.

The senator will deliver his first speech in Wichita, Kansas, on Thursday, where a meeting has been arranged by former Governor Henry Allen. His theme will be "constitutional government," and he will stress the prohibition issue.

While Borah has sought to laugh off suggestions that he is a Presidential candidate, political observers here all concede the potency of the appeal of prohibition to the more or less dry West and middle West.

LOGICAL CANDIDATE.

If the prohibition question is made the paramount issue in the campaign, as many believe it will, it is pointed out that Borah by his campaign for strict enforcement and against nullification of the Constitutional amendment would in all probability be the logical candidate of the dry.

The power of the World Court issue has already been demonstrated. In every instance in which the League of Nations' Court has been stressed in Republican primary campaigns, the World Court supporters have gone down to defeat.

Senator Borah will strike at the Court and begin his campaign for withdrawal of the United States proposal to join the tribunal in a speech in Denver. Senator Rice W. Means of Colorado is a candidate for re-election.

TO INVADE CALIFORNIA.

After spending some time in Idaho, Borah expects to invade California, where Senator Shortridge, a court advocate, is up for renomination on August 31. He will aid Senator Hiram Johnson, who is supporting the candidacy of Judge Robert Clarke of Los Angeles, as opponent of the Court.

While on the Coast it is likely that Borah will accept an invitation to enter Nevada and denounce the court. Senator Tasker Oddie, who voted for the court, is a candidate for re-election.

Borah will then double back and make several speeches en route to the East. One will probably be made in St. Paul and another in Wisconsin, where Senator Lenroot, who led the fight for the court, is battling for his political life with Governor J. J. Blaine.

As a climax to his tour, Borah expects to invade New York. There he will not only denounce the World Court, for which Senator Wadsworth voted, but will assail the proposed prohibition referendum to be held in that State.

BARON DE CARTIER TO BE LONDON ENVOY

London, Aug. 3. — It is learned that Baron de Cartier, now Belgian Ambassador to Washington, will be transferred to London next year.

The German Ambassador to London, Dr. Friedrich Sthamer, will also vacate his London post at the same time. His successor has not been decided upon, as when Berlin recently sounded London on the possibility of sending Count Bernstorff, the proposal was turned down.

France Looks on Star's Act as Cruel Blow

Paris, Aug. 3 (I.N.S.).—The French Lawn Tennis federation deplores the action of Mlle. Lenglen in deserting the amateur ranks.

"Suzanne's action is a shock to me," said Albert Canet, president of the federation. "It is a cruel blow to amateur sports in France."

By HARRY J. FLORY
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.

Pourville-Sur-Mer, France, Aug. 3.—"During the last few years tennis has taken a new trend and everybody wants to make money out of it. I do think that I should have mine, too."

Suzanne Lenglen

Thus Mlle. Lenglen explained to the International News Service today in an interview, her reasons for deciding to turn professional, and make a tour of the North American continent.

Suzanne appeared in high glee over the contract which she signed with C. C. Pyle, American sports promoter.

Suzanne has just one regret, she says, over the business of turning professional and that regret concerns Helen Wills, American champion.

HELEN WILLS OUT.

The French are cherishes a secret hope that perhaps the United States Lawn Tennis Association might waive its regulations to permit Miss Wills to engage in a battle, providing the proceeds go to charity.

Suzanne declared emphatically that she would never accept an engagement as a professional for a tennis club. She said:

I am doing this because I like it. It amuses me. I don't look upon it as work, but pleasure.

I love traveling and I hope to go everywhere, but I will keep a permanent residence in France.

I hope I will be well received in America. I was well received the last time, but badly managed.

FRIENDS TURN TIDE.

I desire particularly to visit California and Florida, and I am dying to go to Mexico. It must be more exciting than ever there.

Pere—father I mean—is not very much satisfied to see me leaving France and the tennis which he has lived for all of his life, but he didn't think that he dared to forbid me to go.

I have had others ask me to turn professional. My friends have often asked me why I didn't. I am glad that I have.

Tennis has changed during the last few years. Everybody wants to make money out of it. I do think I should have mine.

I have had many offers to make money in an underhanded fashion, but I have spurned them. I loathe underhandedness.

I certainly hope that the tennis regulations will be revised so that I may eventually have another match with Helen Wills. But I don't expect that is possible.

The difficulties at Wimbledon, when Suzanne refused to play at the direction of the Wimbledon authorities when she claimed she was unfit, contributed largely to her decision to turn professional, Suzanne said.

CUPIDITY BIG FACTOR.

She did not say so in so many words, but she indicated that pressure that at Wimbledon was brought, means of attracting a large gate, had convinced her that the time had come when she should herself profit from the gate receipts.

Suzanne admitted that she is perhaps starting a new era in tennis, and agreed with her manager, Pyle, that perhaps the future will see open tennis championships, just as there are open golf championships.

Questioned concerning the amount of her contract, Suzanne threw up her hands.

"No," she said emphatically, "I won't talk about money. I don't like to talk money. I don't know what I am getting.

"Just tell everybody I am very happy about it all. I have no regrets. I thought the time had come for me to get mine," she said by way of farewell.

Suzanne said that reports circulated in the United States yesterday by a press association that she had refused Pyle's offers were not correct.

Detroit Authorities Firm in Forcing Bambino to Defend Illegal Fishing Charges

Detroit, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—If George Herman Ruth, Birdar of Swat, does not appear in justice court at Brighton, Mich., Saturday, to answer to charges of fishing in Michigan waters without a license he will be arrested at the American League Ball Park, here the following Monday.

So said C. B. Wilkinson, conservation officer for Oakland and Livingstone counties, today.

"I hold a warrant for Ruth," he said, "and if he does not appear I'll have to arrest him."

When the Yankees were here Ruth joined a fishing party at Island Lake Hotel. While he and Pat J. Sexton were fishing from the hotel porch a deputy game warden seized their tackle and a string of 25 fish, some of which he said were undersize bass and bluegills. Ruth, a non-resident of Michigan, was fishing without a license, it was charged.

GOLFERS OPEN PUBLIC LINKS TITLE TILT

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 3 (I.N.S.).—Irving Ralph of Buffalo and Lee Boyle of Philadelphia today teed off at Grover Cleveland Park, officially opening the fifth national public links championship tournament.

After them twosome followed twosome in the first half of the 36 hole qualifying round. The second half will be played tomorrow, and the low 32 will qualify for the flight that opens match play on Thursday.

Those who fail to get in will participate in an 18-hole consolation round at the Transit Valley Country Club on Thursday. One hundred and fifty players from twenty-seven cities are entered.

Scores in the first qualifying round of 18 holes, which will also count in the team competition for the Warren C. Harding trophy, follows:

Irving W. Ralph, Buffalo, 77; Leo Boyle, Philadelphia, 77; Edward Loeffler, Cincinnati, 77; E. J. Adams, St. Joseph, Mo., 84; Edward Curtin, Newark, N. J., 78; C. F. Kaufman, Pittsburgh, 77; Charles Mount, Baltimore, 82; Joseph Ford, New York city, 78; Clarke Morse, St. Louis, 77; Arthur Lund, Detroit, 81.

CHASING the CHAMPION

Written by HARRY WILLS for the BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

By HARRY WILLS—CHAPTER II

I DO not think and will not say that Dempsey never was a great fighter. He must have been a good one. What I claim is that I am a better man and now, with years of idleness and "soft" living on his shoulders, Dempsey is not the one who can stand up under my smashes.

Dempsey, in my opinion, is THROUGH! And Dempsey knows it.

I do not blame Dempsey altogether for his shifting, backing and filling. Jack Kearns, shrewd and side-stepping baby himself, aided and abetted Dempsey in protecting that precious crown.

Gene Tunney

While it is a shameful sight to see a so-called champion dodging challenges that he has been ORDERED TO RESPECT by the New York Boxing Commission and which he accepted and then ran out of in a most cowardly way, you can understand why Kearns wanted to keep a good meal ticket.

The recent break between Kearns and Dempsey has shed much light on the tactics of this pair of champion runners. In painting each other a much blacker shade than nature painted my own skin, Dempsey and Kearns have shown conclusively that I am the man to fear, that I am the one man to dodge.

They have tried to build up Gene Tunney, a likeable fellow and a fair fighter, as a real challenger, but they have known all the while that Tunney would last with me hardly through one round of toe-to-toe going.

Tunney knows this, and Tunney doesn't want any of my game either. It is not cowardice that keeps Tunney away from me—IT IS COMMON SENSE.

The recent stand of the Commission that Dempsey must fight me or not fight at all in New York were commendable one. But that will never make Dempsey come through. He is tired of fighting.

Although he has been pictured as a lion, a roaring lion, and a glutton for Queensberry gore, I always had a solid hunch that he never did like to fight and that his scowl—compared to that of Jeffries—was camouflage.

I sometimes thought that the Dempsey frown was not that of the warrior, but that of a man who was sore on the world that forced him to fight for the big purses that were in store.

Jim Jeffries

Since boyhood, I have gone on, plodding, trying and learning and I want to say that I have fought many a white man who, in my mind, had more actual gameness in his little finger than Dempsey has in his whole frame.

Local Surgeon Saves Eldridge

Great things are expected of Leonard Eldridge, crack semi-pro ball player of Lynn, now that the injured index finger on his throwing hand has been repaired.

Eldridge, long a favorite with Twi[n] fans, because of his great playing with the old Corneis, was injured some time ago by a line drive. Doctors whom he consulted while on a southern trip, offered him no remedy so he waited until he got home, and, the operation done by the Revere surgeon proved a complete success.

BUDGET ASSISTS YOUNG COUPLES

How to Succeed in Keeping Outgo in Bounds

Budget Talk No. 117.
By MARTHA LEE

"I AM going to be married in September," writes Miss G. T. B. "We have bought a little four-room house in the country. We have only $300 left with which to furnish it. Will you help me?"

I imagine a good many readers would be interested in the information I have gathered for Miss G. T. B.

First I divided the $300 into four parts, allotting $76 to each room. Then under each room I listed the absolute necessities.

Next I thought of these articles in terms of attractiveness and practicability in color and went shopping for my little friend. The August furniture sales are on and it is not difficult to find excellent bargains. The curtains, couch cover, bed spreads and lamp shades, all important in lending color and homeness to the new house, should be made at home in order to obtain good quality at small expense.

For the living room, a dull blue color scheme with touches of orange would be lovely, I think. Buff walls and blue curtains with orange binding will give these colors. They can be repeated in chairs, couch cover and rugs.

Blue and white combined with buff walls will make a colorful kitchen. The linoleum, enamel furniture and dishes can repeat the same colors.

A blue painted Windsor bed and chair, a blue rag rug and yellow muslin curtains help to make a gay bedroom with buff walls.

For the other bedroom I would suggest gray painted furniture decorated with rose pink stencils matching curtains, and a rose and yellow rag rug.

Here are how my furniture finds lined up:

LIVING ROOM—Mahogany gateleg table, $20; overstuffed chair, tan cover, $25, willow chair, natural color, $6; couch spool cover, muslin, $14.48, wrought iron lamp and shade $5.95, books and heavy bed spread $14.50, framed pictures and mirror, $15.95; braided rugs of blue and yellow, $9.95, muslin curtains and pillow covers, $8.95, total, $117.99.

BEDROOM—Double bed, mattress and spring, $23.41; dresser (second-hand, repainted), $4.50; rush seat rocker and side chair, $6.46; mirror with gray painted frame, $3.50; rag rug of yellow and rose, $5.95, total, $44.32.

SECOND BEDROOM—Single bed, mattress, spring, $25.95 (double bed of same type at same price if preferred). Chest of drawers of silver maple, $15.90; ladder back chair, painted blue, $3.25; yellow rag rug, fringed ends, $3.95; total, $49.05.

Kitchen—Drop leaf table (to be painted), $5.95; four chairs (later to be painted white and blue, matching table), $16.00; floor covering (laid by purchaser), $18.52; Oak ice box with enamel lining $28.95; various small items for utensils $28.58 total, $78. Incidentals, $18.80; total for house, $300.00

Is family finances riding for a fall? Budget will teach you to keep a tight rein.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Mrs. T. R. B. has been watching our Budget System closely. Asks what we can do for her. She has the interest of $10,000 a year to live on, which means $800 a year, at 8 per cent. Owns her own home, is all alone in the world, owes no bills. Puts away $2 each week for Christmas club, pays $2.28 a month for telephone, $1.50 for electricity (uses $18, water bill $10. Food $4 weekly and up). Most of the time rents room at $3.50 a week. Coal and wood $100 a year. Oil in Winter 25c a week, in Summer 50c or 75c. Likes to dress well and takes advantage of many sales.

Let us budget for Mrs. B's week income that you have when your room is let. This would allow you $3 weekly for shelter which in your case means taxes, repairs and fire insurance on the house, $3.75 weekly for food including milk, $2.25 weekly for clothing $1.25 for operating, $2.50 for personal and savings $1.50 which should include the Christmas club.

Even at $15 you are a little short.

Practical Hints on Spending by a Plan

on some of these allotments, although you may be able to borrow something from shelter. Unless your room is let most of the time I do not see how you manage as well as you do.

Mrs. M. P. has five in the family and an income of $250 gas, telephone and electricity average $6 or $8 a month and she pays $5 a week on furniture and $2 on another bill. Rent is $45, but she only pays $4 of this. She has her food under $20.

Dear lady, I hope the recipe books I am sending you will help a little in reducing food costs which are the secret of your frenzied finances.

Uncle Sam says $14.80 is a liberal allowance for food for five, including milk and husband's business luncheon. Of course this means a lot of careful study and the intelligent use of cereals, breads, dried fruits and the less expensive foods.

A $20.80 budget ordinarily would allow $3 weekly for savings, $4 for shelter, including business carfares, $10 for food, $4 for clothing, $4 for operating and $3.80 for personal.

As you pay only $5 a month on the rent you can take the balance of the shelter allotment and add it to your food division. Back debts and furniture bills are supposed to be paid out of personal. Can't these payments be reduced and extended?

I am wondering if $25.60 is not your housekeeping allowance if so, it is not fair to make family budget from it.

Mrs. H. F. C's husband makes $30; gives her $27, pays $18 rent, gas $1.50, milk $1.32, ice 45 cents, $2 weekly on furniture, $2 on clothing, service and meals, $14; insurance $2.75, passes 10 cents weekly, a total of fixed expenses $44.71 weekly.

As you do not tell me how many there are in your family it is hard for me to say just how much should be allowed for food. A budget for $27.50 for family of three will allow savings, $2.50, including insurance; shelter and business carfares, $5.50; food, $10; clothing, $3.50, operating, $4, personal, $2.

Unless the income can be increased, I do not see how you can do any better than you are doing at present.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Furnishing the Home

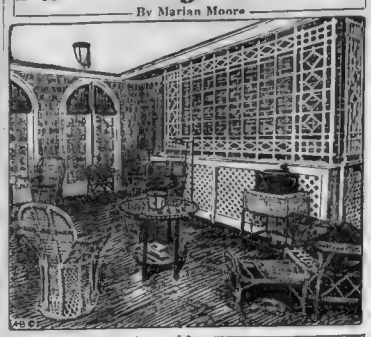
By Marian Moore



WHAT is wrong with this room? Doesn't it look to you as if the owners had gone away for the Summer?

Assuredly, people do not live in this room, else they would have accumulated there the things that are related to their occupations, tastes, preferences, and which, taken altogether, constitute atmosphere.

The well-made rattan furniture, the lovely hour-glass chairs, the elaborate white trellis are only the framework of the decoration, essential but incomplete.

Some we have our magic wand? First we must trim the windows. Their lovely fan-like top lends itself to particularly effective draping. plain rose or peach-colored organdie, or lustrous sunproof netting, would contrast charmingly with the gray shingles and match the faint rose of the white woodwork.

I'd have flowers in the jardinieres, and English ivy with rambler roses, natural or artificial, at both ends of the latticework, with a large mirror in the centre to bring the garden right into the room.

The round table and one or two others should be placed within convenient reach of the chairs and supplemented by book shelves, magazine racks and portable smoking stands.

Adequate lighting is essential to cheer, comfort and coziness, and the absence of gayly shaded floor or table lamps would suffice to justify the deserted appearance of this room.

The Making of a Husband, Ann Lisle's Clever Serial

Now I know.

I sat there on the upturned bucket in the garage whose stuffy air was choking me and put my face into my hands. For I was sure I knew all the salient facts in connection with the disappearance of Arlette Valleau.

"Maybe I'll never get out of here alive to tell the facts," I thought.

Then I realized that it might be better that way. For the ugly premise on which I had to base all my sexual conclusion was this:

It was Jim who drove the car into the garage three days ago. Arlette was here then. So Jim knows where she is now.

There no pat evading the conclusion. Jim must know where Arlette is.

Right into the garage whose heavy air was no more oppressive than my own thoughts, I put my hands over my face and let the bitter tears trickle unheeded through my fingers.

The disappearance of Arlette Valleau was my tragedy. The realization of Jim's obvious connection with it was the death-knell to my happiness.

I found myself becoming reconciled to a death by suffocation. I was sure I could not survive many hours in the stuffy air with its fumes of gasoline. But it seemed kinder to die in the little chamber where I was fastened than to come out and face the realization that Jim had some ugly and hidden connection with Arlette Valleau's disappearance.

My thoughts became increasingly morbid. Their refrain was this:

"Jim came out to the garage three days ago and found Arlette here. Maybe they had arranged it. Anyway he was so angry at me for suspecting that he knew something about Arlette that he didn't care what he did. He must have taken the car and driven her somewhere—through the woods perhaps. That is why the Sheriff and I didn't hear them go. Then he came back and persuaded the Sheriff not to arrest Kay and Zeke. That may have been the wish to give Arlette plenty of time to—get away—wherever it is he—wants her to be."

There were ugly facts to bear this out. Jim knew Arlette was to be an heiress. Perhaps he had told her. Perhaps this explained his hesitancy when the Sheriff asked him if he had told anyone of the new will the old doctor had drawn up. He might have loaned her the money to get away. Bertie Lingard was sure Jim had given her money.

Perhaps Arlette wanted to avoid Nicholas Perry—to escape her dangerous pity for Bertie Lanard and his love. Perhaps, as Bertie had so sadly but positively urged, Arlette wanted a life of leisure in a place where she was not considered a little "scullery maid" without a right to an honest name. There were plenty of reasons why Arlette might be glad to leave our neighborhood. And there were as many reasons why Jim should be glad to help her get away. He had confessed that she had an irresistible lure for men. Perhaps he wanted to get her out of his own way. He might have chosen this as the way to fight temptation.

For a moment my thoughts were uplifted there in the stifling air. Then they closed down on me again as dank as the night.

The most horrible thought of all came and lodged in my mind.

The thought that I myself had driven Jim wanted to take Arlette away from the fascination Nick had already had for her, from the pity Bertie inspired. He might have hidden her from his rivals—not from himself!

I couldn't escape my thoughts. The pressure of the heavy air lowered my resistance. I couldn't fight suspicion. It grew upon me with more certainty each moment that our empty garage with the little green kasha scarf on the floor had told me an irrefutable story.

Misery and foul air overcame me at last. I began to grow delirious. I found myself recalling the old ballad of the bride who hid in a chest when they were playing a game of hide and seek on her wedding night. She was never found. Years later they took her skeleton and the silk that was failing to ashes from the chest . . .

I felt it might be like that with me. I wondered who would mourn me. And then the present began to slip away.

I remembered all Jim and I had gone through together. I recalled how he had loved me once . . . how he had broken my heart many times and again through the days when he was suspected of knowing something about the death of Brooks de Forrest. I thought of his magnificent and something like pride of how I trusted him then against a host of prejudice and circumstantial evidence and how noble he had proved when it turned out that he had endured it all rather than betray to Pat and cry out:

"Thou art the man!"

Jim had let me suffer then so Jeanie could have her peace of mind. Jeanie could have forgiven me had I sacrificed me. He had counted on my faith in him. Perhaps he was counting on it now. But this time I knew the hideous truth.

Jim had yielded to the fascination of a pretty child. He had expected me to believe in him now against a weight of real evidence as I had stood by before when he was not guilty.

Martha Lee's Pointers and Recipes

THE proud possessor of an electric table stove can truly "come out of the kitchen" this weather and do her baking on the piazza, sun porch or wherever the coolest spot is where there is an electric plug.

One of our club members has a 12-inch cord which she plugs in on a kitchen socket and runs through the window to a study corner of the lawn where she has a table, chairs and a big screen, for outdoor meals.

Here are some suggested menus for table stove cookery:

Monday—BREAKFAST — Fruit, boiled bacon, fried eggs, toast and milk. LUNCH—Creamed tomato soup with croutons, potato cakes, pineapple and pecan salad. DINNER—Broiled steak, creamed potatoes, rolls, lettuce salad and Russian dressing.

Tuesday—BREAKFAST — Fruit, shredded wheat, griddle cakes or waffles with maple syrup or honey, coffee. LUNCH—Puffy omelet, hot butter cakes, steamed custard and jelly. DINNER — Broiled lamb chops, baked brown potatoes, tomato salad, toasted cheese crackers.

Wednesday—BREAKFAST—Cereal, scrambled eggs and bacon, toast and coffee. LUNCH—Spanish omelet, toast, fruit salad and tea. DINNER—Broiled pork chops, apple sauce, fried potatoes and lettuce salad.

Thursday—BREAKFAST — Fruit, cereal, poached eggs on toast. Instant coffee. LUNCH—Hash, potato and bacon salad, toasted rolls or waffles. DINNER—Hamburg steak with mushrooms, French fried potatoes, buttered toast, orange salad.

Friday — BREAKFAST — Cereal, fruit, codfish cakes, toast. LUNCH—Spaghetti with tomato sauce, waffles and jelly. DINNER—Broiled halibut steak, sliced tomatoes, potatoes warmed in butter and parsley, rolls.

Saturday—BREAKFAST — Fruit, broiled ham, eggs fried, toast. LUNCH—Lobster Newburg, combination salad, toasted crackers. DINNER—Broiled steak and onions, hashed brown potatoes, lettuce salad, whole wheat bread.

Sunday — BREAKFAST — Fruit, griddle cakes and tiny broiled sausages. DINNER—Chicken a la king, toast, fried sweet potatoes, sliced tomatoes. SUPPER—Waffles and maple syrup, iced tea.

Since waffles figure prominently on these menus, I am going to repeat my own original waffle recipe. It makes waffles that are guaranteed not to slump and play dead two minutes after coming from the iron.

Martha's Waffles—Before starting to mix your waffles, turn the heat on in your electric waffle iron, putting a piece of white paper between the grids. When the paper is charred a dark brown you will know that the iron is hot enough to cook waffles to perfection.

Sift two cups of flour with four teaspoons of baking powder and a scant teaspoonful of salt and a big tablespoonful of sugar. Separate the yolks and whites of three eggs, beat the whites stiff, beat the yolks until thick and add one cup of milk.

Add the milk and eggs slowly to the dry mixture, beating until smooth and light, add a teaspoonful of vanilla and a whole stick of butter (one-quarter pound) melted, beat well and then fold in gently the beaten egg whites.

Do not grease electric waffle iron if the grids are of aluminum. There is enough shortening in these waffles to make them self-greasing and the recipe is big enough to feed a flock. This recipe will make about sixteen waffles. Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

Story of a Boston Girl Who Liked Jazz Music and the Bright Lights

CHAPTER XLII.

(Copyright, 1920, Johnson Features, Inc.)

LAUGHTER rippled all over Lillie's broad white face, and sparkled in her bright little eyes.

"As if I don't remember me, Tubby," she said, looking more and more pleased. "Of course, I've fleshed up a bit since that Winter down in Florida—and I'm not any younger than I was. But I'll bet you'd know who I was if I sat down here a little while."

Her fat face broke into a low rolling laugh that was not forgotten Lillie Dale. She remembered him, too.

He tried to look pleasant. But Merry saw him frown as Lillie sat down in Monty Hill's rocking chair and settled herself for a nice long gossip with him.

Merry could still hear her and Mom's talking upstairs, an hour later, when Les Purcell came good night.

Bill had outstayed him, and when Merry and he were alone he was silent for a long time.

It was she who broke the silence at last.

"I suppose you're angry with me, Bill," she said. In the dim, flickering light from the grate fire she saw him flushed and lovely, and her lowered lashes made matching shadows on her cheeks.

"Aren't you?" she asked, and raised the green slanting eyes that knew how to say more than any words could.

Bill turned and took her by both arms, shaking her a little. He stirred down at her fiercely.

"What have you to say for yourself?" e a.ked her. His voice trembled with the rage he had been holding in leash all evening. Rage, and jealousy, too.

"What do you mean by having that fellow here?" he went on say. "Who the devil is he, any way?"

"Don't swear," Merry said in a small, penitent voice. "Don't swear at me." She raised her big eyes and tried to look frightened.

But she wasn't. She knew she had Bill Erskine under her thumb, as she never had had him before in the seven years of her had put him in her power.

Close in her Bill repeated, slightly her by both arms. His fingers pressed deep into her rose white flesh, and she winced.

"You hurt me," she cried, but he only shook her again.

"Who is he?"

It Struck Her All at Once That Bill Looked Awfully Funny

"He's a man," said Merry, and she giggled.

It struck her all at once that Bill looked awfully funny with his face red with anger, his eyes bulging, and his teeth biting hard on the eternal black cigar.

"He's a man—who wants to marry me, she finished. I'm not in the least afraid. He's a friend of Lillie's—"

She did not mention that she had known Les Purcell years before Bill. he knew him—away back in her little-girl high school days.

"And that's another thing! I don't like you to be in that beauty shop any more, Bill," she reverted to shout out of Bill's mouth. "I don't like her! I think you'd better get out of the beauty shop—and the quicker the better—"

"But, Bill," Merry cut in in a sweet, timid little voice. "But Bill I can't. I've got to earn my own living, as you perfectly know, and what would I do if I gave up the shop?"

In the golden half-light that came from the dancing flames she looked very soft and innocent and helpless as she flirted her big eyes at him.

"You see, I've got to do some thing for a living for myself. I just must made up my mind to get married" she went on in the same girlish voice. "I'll have to make up my mind to it—"

"Who's the man?" Bill asked, his voice with jealousy.

"Just one man that I'm very fond of," Merry answered, and her lowered lashes made shadows on her cheeks.

"Are you crazy?" he wanted to know.

He shook her head faintly. "Who is he, Merry?" she asked shaking her head gaily, so that all the gold-leaf ripples of her hair shook like metal.

"Not any more," she said again, in her little fluting voice. "I've gone to my answer, Bill. I've been waiting around for you for almost a year. Almost a year of my sweet twenties gone, Bill—and you're gleamed narrowly. For once he had forgotten his black cigar, and it had dropped from one of his pudgy hands.

"No, indeed!" Merry answered warmly, but her bright blue green eyes were full of mischief with the sparkle of laughter. It seemed to Bill that she actually was laughing at him at him!

"No, I call you a very nice person," Merry told him, with her head on one side and her hands clasped around one shiney knee. But I've been thinking out later that I'm very fond of you—"

The Girl's Eyebrows Arched Themselves on Her Clear Brow

"From this Purcell guy I suppose?" Bill wanted to know.

Merry nodded heedfully.

"Yes, from him," she confessed. "and from other men, too! From Muriel Kaufman's friend, Cabby Marsh, for instance!"

She stopped and let that sink in.

It did. Bill scowled darkly.

"Cabby Marsh, and also Purcell, are very pretty high, aren't you? Getting into the millionaire class, eh?"

The girl's eyebrows arched themselves on her clear white brow, and her green, sparkling eyes were wonderful to see.

"I didn't know Cabby had any money," she answered lightly. "I never think of money when I think of people. I just think of the people, themselves. I like Cabby," she let her voice become soft and dreamy.

She gazed wistfully into the fire-place.

Bill Erskine's eyes were on her face. She knew that he was angry with that peculiar anger that is born of jealousy.

That made no difference to her mind. She was more than glad to prick. "You didn't think nobody would notice me, did you Bill?" she asked him.

"You don't think I fell all the men I'm engaged to you, do you?"

Bill stood and watching at her, puzzled and angry, and all at once. His head never seen Merry in a mood had quite before—fond of rock, lessness and tantalizing laughter, and he didn't know whether he wanted to shake her, kiss her, or just sit up and walk out of the house.

"What he did was simply to sit still and go on staring at her vaguely.

"Indeed, I don't tell anybody I'm engaged to you," she answered but own question. "I'm very tired of sitting at home alone, like an old maid school ma'am! I've got my second twenties gone, Bill—I'm a cloud of dust. All I want you to do is to let me break the engagement and go my way singing paeans of joy and a bit of jazz." She threw back her head and laughed wildly, hysterically.

"I'm too young for you, anyhow," she told Bill out at him. "I never should have said I'd marry you—I hate you sometimes—"

She began to cry in earnest. She tried to stop, but she couldn't. Her teeth chattered and she shook all over flushed down into one corner of the hair-cloth sofa.

Bill got up and began to shake her. He closed the door of the room so that Moms should not hear her sobs.

"My Lord, Merry, what's got into you?" he asked. "Merry—Merry —Listen to me! Turn around, and look at me!"

But Merry paid no attention to him. She went on crying more wildly than ever. And Bill was forced to go halfway up the stairs and call for Moms to come down.

She came, gaunt and thin, in a gray-and-white flannel bathrobe.

"What did you do to her?" she asked Bill accusingly, when she saw the state Merry was in.

"I?" asked Bill blankly. "I?"

Moms gave him a look that he never forgot, and turned to Merry.

"You'd better go," he said over her shoulder, and Bill did not need a second invitation. He went—and all the way back to his hotel he pondered the woman question.

"Can't figure 'em out. Queer things—women," was his final conclusion.

They were too deep for him.

In one an hour before Merry was quiet in her own bed. She lay propped against the pillows, sipping the glass of hot milk that Moms had brought her.

Her lips quivered, and she drew a long sobbing breath.

"Oh, Moms!" she burst out, and threw herself on her mother's warm enfolding bosom. "Oh, Moms! Tony Gates is going to marry some girl out in Montana! Oh, I can't bear it. I can't bear it—I can't bear it—"

Moms sat still on the edge of the bed, and heed her close, while she sobbed out the misery that had been gnawing, like a pain, in her heart ever since she had heard the news about Tony and Katherine Banner man.

And, all at once, Moms remembered something else about Merry—an old memory that caught at her heart. Long ago when she was a little girl she had fallen down on her way to school. She had stayed for the morning session, had walked all the way home with her knee hurt until she was in Moms' arms had she began to cry because her knees were scraped and bruised.

And like many another mother, Moms had nothing to heal the bruise and hurt that Merry was showing her—this hurt that was in her heart. All she could do was stroke the soft bright hair, and murmur that it didn't really matter.

"There's a good fire in the grate as ever were caught, my dear," said Moms. "Did you tell Bill Erskine how you feel about Tony?"

The girl shook her head.

"Well, thank goodness for that!" Moms said fervently. "You'd better keep him and be done with it. There's nothing brings a girl around to her senses like getting married and having her family! You don't care about that Gaines anyway. He's been gone from this town for more than a year, and you've never opened your mouth about him You just imagine you're in love with him, because you've been hearing about him and some other girl!"

With a wise Moms kiss of comfort she left Merry to sleep.

Can a Girl "Come Back"? -:- -:- By Beatrice Fairfax

I Loved Unwisely — So I Left My Parents — Then I Came Back With Baby — And Met the Right Man

THERE may be other desperately-anxious girls who will gain fresh courage to go on with the battle and make their lives anew, through reading the letters I shall print today, from girls who come back, after the humiliation, suffering, terror and disillusionment of their bitter experience, and are making good.

"Dear Miss Fairfax: I am one who came back. I loved unwisely, but God was good, and there was not a child

"I went away where I wasn't known and started anew. I worked hard for seven years until the loss of my good name and reputation in life.

"He loved me from the first and I loved him. My past kept me from admitting my love.

"Finally, I confessed my youthful error and was forgiven. The man I love told me in your exact words, forget the past and make the future your own.'

"He also said, 'Who am I to judge? God alone can do that.'"

It is inevitable that those who make false steps in the years of young womanhood should suffer the loss of self-respect, the loathing of marriage and motherhood, which must for but by her sin.

It is good to know, however, that the moment we begin doing right, we commence to live down old mistakes and build for peace, usefulness and joy.

This truth is brought out equally by the letter I have just quoted and the following

"I also have gone through the valley of death—a living death—unaided.

"But I did not lose courage. I fought with all my might to keep my head above water and most of all to remain true to myself.

"I never forgot my prayers. In fact, up to that time I never knew what a wonderful God we have, but now I know. A year ago my baby was born. As soon as I was well again, I devoted my time to business and the evenings to my baby.

"I had gone to a distant state and did not communicate with my

"Work hard. Devote your life to your child, and I for one know that the baby will reimburse you for [illegible]"

Human hearts beat kindly and warmly. There are usually eager, helping hands held out to the girl who, whatever mistake she has made, is now "fighting with might and main to be true to herself."

of frankness on this man and woman proposition. We're facing facts all down the line—why not about that problem?"

"What problem?" Joslyn asked with a hope that she might, in some degree, hold her own against his confident assertions. "I'm not a problem or a proposition."

The music stopped and he released her from his arms. "I must have sounded like an awful fool," he said with a sudden rueful smile. "You see, I'm not an expert with the ladies. I'm too analytical; I'll probably try to translate my emotions into statistics, formulas and [illegible]

Joslyn, at that moment, became conscious of a pleasant, if cautious, liking for the man. Instinctively, she sensed the serious back of his power, about him was the scarcely concealed arrogance of success but she there was a hint of boyishness [illegible] under the [illegible] which told her that his experience with women had not been large. At the same time, she knew that he would be the hardest to handle of any man she had met.

As the first impact of his personality began to wear away she realized thankfully that she was unscathed—unbruised. Whatever the future held for her with Henry Brierhalter would be decided by her cold bloodied mental decision, not by any uncontrollable flood of sensation.

In the short stroll from the dance floor back to the table she reviewed her whole entire relationship with James Kelvin. With a kind of fe[illegible] she realized it was the only thing that counted.

Kittie got her ear. "How'd you make out?"

Joslyn did not reply with words, but her smile, as if by telepathy, told Kittie the news.

"Atta girl!" whispered the little blonde. "Didn't give you the low down? If you aren't riding in a limousine by next week I'll eat my own darn fault."

Just for a fleeting moment Joslyn's face flushed there was a shadow misery in her eyes. "Aw, don't get scared" Kittie told her softly. "You won't have to do anything awful—leave that stuff for the boys. You got a chance to marry this bird."

Joslyn shook her head silently. Marriage to Henry Brierhalter with all its implications was a cold impossibility.

The whispering of the girls was broken up by Brierhalter presenting a chesty, round-faced man of middle years, who proved to be the manager of the Club Bombay. The club was the manager was a person of importance, his visit to the table a mark of distinction that Brierhalter, despite his Wall Street millions, did not overlook.

For Joslyn he had a deferential smile. "I got a trade at last for you, Miss Poe," he said with heavy humor. "You know Mortimer De Costa—the dancer—De Costa and Mercedes? We consider 'em the cleverest team since the Castles. Well, De Costa was standing over at the bar a while ago and your name was mentioned. He said you had as much natural ability as anybody in the game."

The names meant nothing to Joslyn. New York was filled with famous people of whom she had never heard, but a little flutter of excitement ran through her at the coup at Brierhalter's table. Even Brierhalter himself seemed pleased, flattered.

"Why, of course, Miss Poe is as good as the best," he said with a trace of pride.

"Ever dance professionally? Miss Poe?" the manager asked.

Before Joslyn could reply Kittie Lane answered for her. "Why, certainly! Lillian De Costa is a friend of mine. Mercedes slipped on the pavement the other day and sprained her ankle! Lillian De Costa is looking for a partner to fill in till Mercedes gets well—"

Joslyn turned amazed eyes at her little champion. Under the table Kittie gave her a silencing kick on the ankle.

"I don't know about that," the manager smiled "But De Costa may he'd like to dance once with Miss Poe. I don't know what his motive was."

No Situation Ever Gathered So Quickly Out of a Blue Sky

In the rapid whirl of events no situation had ever gathered quicker out of a blue sky to involve Joslyn.

"I'd like to see Miss Poe dance with De Costa," Brierhalter said superlatively poised. "I think it would be a picture to study and remember."

Mortimer De Costa, tall and [illegible] in appearance, and Joslyn, five minutes later, bowing with matchless grace to a throbbing melody. Under his away she lost consciousness of her body [illegible] became a thing of spirit flowing with inspiration through limitless space.

"You'll do," De Costa said, without enthusiasm when they finished. "Let's sit down here a minute."

He led her to a remote table. He was gloomy-faced with tired eyes, but stamped indubitably with a touch of genius

"My wife—Mercedes—is out for a month, at least. You're about 10 per cent the dancer she is and you get about half her good looks. I haven't the faintest idea who you are but if you're making a play for [illegible] you're [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

DAILY SHORT STORY

THE GLAD ATONEMENT

By Merlyn Swift

Out of the murky night a long grey wolf, a motor car, its engine muffled by the fog and the wind into which it tore, bore down upon a man who stepped lightly and carelessly into the roadway.

The grey car passed. He lay there, terribly motionless, outsprawled upon the road.

Ten minutes afterwards, a policeman saw him there carried him to a nearby house and phoned for the ambulance.

The papers gave all they knew next day. He was an artist, Johann Wolffe. He had been coming home from a late interview with a publisher. Out of the night, a murder car had swept down on him, and passed on without stopping.

Johann Wolffe would live, but so ruined and deformed that death, perhaps, would have been a mercy to him. Yet Johann Wolffe himself was eager to live.

His arm was still good. He could paint. He was young and his fine, youthful body had been strong with the power to fight against death. But chiefly he longed to live because in his heart a great desire had been born. He had a craving to avenge himself on the man who had blasted him.

At the hospital, Johann Wolffe had a doctor named Sears, a kindly, white headed man, who tried to ease his patient's suffering not only by the remedies his skill could devise, but also by the calm and amiable advice of a just and christian mind.

"Forget how you got your injuries, Wolffe," he told the artist when the time came for him to be taken home. "Thinking of revenge, harboring hatred for a man you will never hear of again is foolish, primitive and only retards your recovery.

"I have a good nurse for you. She will do everything to make it easy for you."

Johann Wolffe went home. He lived by himself, making a good income from his work. Soon he was able to draw again, and in the devotion to his art he could for hours forget what had befallen him.

But he was slow to be reconciled to the cruel imprisonment, fate had put upon him.

Marian Coster, the nurse Dr Sears had sent him, proved to be all the doctor had said of her. Wolffe who had never known a woman's care in all his years of youth and manhood, responded to her efforts to please him.

His liking for her turned to affection and soon to passionate love. When he asked her for her lips she surrended herself eagerly. Scarcely a month after she came to him they were married.

Johann Wolffe, after the manner of men, was slow to wonder why a girl like Marian Coster had tied herself to a cripple and had become his wife when life held forth to her so many things more alluring.

But the wonder of her love, the rich beauty of her mind, the grace of her body he soon discovered, and, with unspeakable joy, realized that they were all for him.

Then the destroying truth dawned on him. He learned that she had not been a nurse before she came to him. She was of wealthy parentage and had led a life of social ease. There could be only one answer to her reason for coming to him. . . . She had sacrificed herself out of pity because she was the one who had driven the car that had made him helpless.

Far more than he had cursed the fate that crippled him, Wolffe damned this cruel turn that had made her his wife.

How could she love him or really care? It must be agony for her . . . sacrifice of all that she loved, just to atone for what she had been unable to help.

Wolffe, born of a race who hold their lives lightly in a crisis of emotion, resolved to kill himself. That would release her and still leave her the satisfaction of having done her best to atone. He could leave a note saying that he suffered so from his deformity that life was no longer endurable.

He had written that note. He had secured a small phial of poison that would work swiftly and surely.

He wheeled himself out on the porch above the entrance late one afternoon that he might die in sight of the green fields he loved.

He had her picture in his lap that he might look on it, too, and thus let her know that he had died loving her.

The phial was at his lips when from the porch below him voices carried along a piece of piping near which he sat, came up to him . . . voices low-pitched and earnest.

"You were a coward Blake." It was Marian who spoke. "I hated you when you would not stop and go back to him. Now that I have learned to love Johann I hate you more.

"Yet I thank you because it was through you that I met him. I could never have found such happiness with you as I have with him. I told you never to speak to me again.

"I tell you now to get away from me with the man I love . . . because I married him for that. I did not. Sympathy moved me to him, but only love has held me here so.

Johann saw a man go down the walk and jump into a long grey roadster at the gate. Perhaps it was the very car.

A tiny bottle of poison smashed on the pavement at the foot of the steps where Marian still stood.

"It was the last of the potion of revenge," he told her, when she came to him. "I no longer had because my love for you leaves no room for other passions."

GOOD HEALTH NECESSARY

Many Busy Women Owe Their Health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Fifty years ago there were few occupations for women. Some taught school, some did housework, some found work to do at home and a few took up nursing.

Today there are very few occupations not open to women. Today they work in great factories with hundreds of other women and girls. There are also women architects, lawyers, dentists, executives, and legislators. But all too often a woman wins her economic independence at the cost of her health.

Mrs. Elizabeth Chamberlain who works in the Uniondl factory making overalls writes that she got "wonderful results" from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mrs. Chamberlain lives at 500 Monmouth St., Trenton, N. J. She recommends the Vegetable Compound to her friends in the factory and will gladly answer any letters she gets from women asking about it.

THE SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON

By Helen Rowland

BEHOLD, in Babylon, there dwelt a youth who KNEW WOMEN. For his middle name was Wise Boy.

And, it was his boast, that, for him, the marriage-tie was but a slip-knot and that no woman should ensnare him therein.

Now, it so happened that a Certain Damsel cast her eyes upon him; and in her glance, there was a strange gleam that Wise Boy understood not.

And, lo, it came to pass that Wise Boy found himself at the damsel's door three evenings running; and he was mightily puzzled. But he forewarned her, saying, "Be not deceived, Sweetest! For this is but a Complex, and will pass, even as the others. For I am NOT a 'marrying man.'"

And the damsel said, "Yes, darling!"

Yet, when three weeks had gone by, Wise Boy was astonished to find himself placing a solitaire upon the third finger of the damsel's hand. And again, he cautioned her, saying:

"Verily, thou hast set thy mark upon me, and I have slipped my moorings. Yet, not for many years shall I be willing to depart from the Fairway of freedom and go into the Rough. And art thou willing to WAIT for me?"

And the damsel said, "Yes, darling!"

And, at the end of six months, Wise Boy saw himself walking to the altar, and was dazed. For, he knew not how he had come there.

But, when the agony was over, he gathered himself together, and spake wisely, saying:

"Now, shall we live our own lives in our own sweet way, and NOT as others do. Lo, there shall be neither mothers-in-law nor relatives nor family friends within our gates. We shall dwell quietly in the suburbs, where there are no cabarets and no formal teas, and no dinner parties nor the giving of dinner parties, to mar our joy. And there shall be only a flivver and a dog and a rose-garden to consume our time and our moneys!"

And the damsel said, "Yes, darling!"

And so it came to pass, that they took a ten-room apartment upon the West Side, and kept an imported car. And they spent their evenings in merriment, and their Winters in Florida, and their Summers with Her Mother. And Wise Boy became the most popular after-dinner speaker in all "their set"!

And, when his years had waxed forty-five and his girth and his fortune had increased, and his Silver Anniversary approached, Wise Boy took his wife in his arms, and kissed her, saying, "How perfectly mated we have been! Lo, thou hast made me what I am today!"

And the woman stroked his hair and whispered softly, "YES, darling!"

And, in the sleeves of Angels and of Cynics, there was the tinkling of silvery laughter. And a voice within cried, "Banana Oil!"; but Wise Boy heard it not. SELAH.

BARTLETT TO BE IN BOSTON FRIDAY

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Traffic Editor

First Assistant Postmaster General John H. Bartlett, former governor of New Hampshire, tells me he expects to be in Boston next Friday at the laying of the cornerstone of the new Back Bay postoffice and at the formal opening of the tubes. The opening of the tubes is an event of first importance to business men, and of course the name is true of the Back Bay postoffice.

Postmaster Roland Baker of Boston has notices conspicuously posted advising the legible addressing of mail. This not only lightens the work for the overtaxed employes, but also speeds up the service. If everyone were to act as clearly as General Bartlett, I am sure Postmaster Baker would be much pleased and that we would all get still better mail service.

Death of Publisher Alfred Bartlett removes a man genuinely popular in Boston circles of business and finance, for years at the head of Boston's claim to literary leadership, from the book publishing standpoint, lay divided between Publisher Bartlett and Publisher Frederick J. Quinby, now millionaire president of Quinby Oil in Texas and Mexico. Both sold their publications in world-wide circles that included many of the heads of Europe that have since been relieved of their crowns.

"Why not," asks the Old State Street Trader, "arrange the telephone dial so that 'wrong number' could be obtained with a single whirl?"

Statement in a financial publication "only 25 cents per share margin is demanded on General Motors" reminds me of how the Boston agent of a young man who approached a floor broker with inquiries about buying a certain stock on 10 margin. "Ten points margin will be wanted," he was told. "Why," replied the young man, "I had fifty points margin, I wouldn't be here!"

Professor C. S. McIlwain, Harvard historian, is quoted as saying American writers of history should emulate meticulous textbook authorship. If Wall Street stock writers should suddenly follow this idea they become unmistakingly accurate, there would be a sudden downward revision of prices in many industrial issues now more or less popular.

Subject to completion of the detailed arrangements, Stone & Webster, Inc., of Boston, will form a syndicate to subscribe $5,000,000 for a new corporation to complete the development of Davis Island, a real estate project in the mouth of the Hillsboro river and within a half-mile of the city hall of Tampa, Fla. Completion of the project calls for extensive construction and dredging work which is expected to be carried forthwith. Stone & Webster will correct the financial affairs of the new enterprise and will do the construction work. The completed project will represent an investment of many millions of dollars.

PACIFIC MILLS SALES DEPARTMENT IS MOVING

Edwin Farnham Greene, treasurer of Pacific Mills, announces decision to remove their sales promotion and advertising departments from Boston to New York, where these departments will be located at 24 Thomas street. The removal of these departments to New York is of special interest following as it does a similar step, recently announced, in the realignment of the Pacific Mills marketing organization. The aim is to bring about closer coordination between the company's various marketing activities, a step further to improve the service rendered to its customers.

BUTTE COPPER & ZINC NET INCOME IS LOWER

Butte Copper & Zinc reports net income of $82,356 after expenses, taxes, depreciation, etc., for six months ended June 30, equal to 12 cents a share, par $5, on 3,000,000 stock, against $260,000, or 33 cents a share, in the first half of 1925.

State Street Notes

STATE STREET hears steel production is being curtailed slightly in the West, due principally to completion of mill orders.

ALL departments of Converse Rubber Shoe Company of Malden have reopened after annual Summer closing.

VIRGINIA Electric & Power Company, a Stone & Webster property, declared regular preferred dividend of $1.75 per share, payable September 20, 1926, to stock of record August 31, 1926.

W. S. QUINBY Coffee Company and Bell, Conrad Company, both in Chicago, have merged. The company will be known at the W. S. Quinby-Bell, Conrad Company.

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

I learned something the other day when I played golf with a man who was in the championship class when younger. He was expected to prove the best player in our foursome, and the match was lined up accordingly.

He landed in a bunker on the first hole and took more strokes than any of the rest of us. The same thing happened on the second. He played the third badly also. Instead of having the lowest score at the end of the first nine, he had the highest score.

"Yes, my game did he blame "hard luck." Never once did he lose his temper. Never once did he swear or raise his voice when his ball took the wrong direction. Once or twice he apologized to his partner for proving such a drag. But that was all.

He started the second half with brilliant playing and from then on exhibited his old-time championship form. The result was that his side won.

How many business men show like patience and perseverance and calmness when things go wrong with them day after day and week after week and month after month? How many people exercise determination and stick-to-itiveness and cheerfulness when fondly expected promotion does not come?

In delving into the career of rich men's sons I have reached the conclusion that their greatest handicap is their lack of the necessary, common to the rest of us, of having to battle daily and hourly against a host of difficulties. Things are made too easy for them. From early childhood they are not taught to serve but to be served. Instead of having to exercise ingenuity to earn a little pocket-money, they have money handed to them without the slightest exertion on their part. When they go to college they are not obliged to earn any part of their expenses. Then, too often, when the time comes for them to go to work, they are given a soft berth in the family business, where they are still under no pressure to sweat.

The French nation derived more benefit from losing the Franco-Prussian war than from the winning of the World War. To meet the heavy indemnity imposed by their victors, they had to buckle down to hard work and frugal living. Since the World War ended, the French have counted too much upon receiving reparations from the vanquished, they have gone ahead and spent more freely for military and other purposes but they have persistently refused to be burdened to national expenditures to meet the national expenditures, and now they are in a plight entailing peril to almost the whole world.

Herbert N. Casson, American-trained business writer, makes this penetrating observation:

"No one is ever any cleverer than he needs to be—that is a law of nature. Trees would not have strong roots if it were not for the gales. Rabbits would never learn to become experts at dodging if it had not been for the dogs and the foxes. Human beings never found out how to make cloth and to make houses until they went to live in cold climates.

"And business men never learned to make large fortunes until they had to face world-wide competition. So, this gives us a happy thought—the next generation of British business men will be the cleverest that the world has ever seen. Never before have there been so many difficulties. Consequently, there will be a wonderful increase in cleverness."

How will it go with us as individuals and as a nation?

Will the reparations we are receiving strengthen or weaken our fibre? Will our prosperity, on a scale never matched by any nation, prove a blessing or tend to sap our finest qualities? Will our unprecedentedly high wages make us more capable, more willing, more industrious workers, or the reverse?

Shall we all prove capable of resisting the subtle temptations which easily-won money, prosperity, success always bring?

(Copyright, 1926, by B. C. Forbes.)

000. And the land would be worth five thousand million dollars.

The idea would be to plan a new modern city, sidewalks on sides of the buildings, playgrounds and roads above buildings, landing places for airplanes, etc.

There are thousands of chances to spend public money for improvements that would pay for themselves ten times over. But it is hard for us to appropriate large sums, unless other nations start cutting each other's throats. Then we become generous, "easy marks." Pour out our billions, and buy foreign hatred with them.

THEATRICAL PEOPLE each pay $1,000.44 for a dinner, forty-four cents for the food and one thousand dollars for the actors' fund. Forty-four cents for one dinner seems cheap to a generous soul, and $1,000 a good deal to the mother of five children whose husband earns $4 a day.

AT FORTY-FOUR cents a meal, that family would need each day $2.34 for food alone, leaving a deficit of $5.24 a day, to say nothing of rent and clothing. Those who fail $5 a day high wages should try living and keeping a family on that sum.

GLAND GRAFTING may not help foolish old men to become as young and silly as they used to be, but to the rest of us may be useful to farmers. Dr. Voronoff, scientist, experimenting on a flock of 2,000 sheep in Algiers proved to French scientists that grafting an additional gland on each young ram increased the average weight of the animal by 19 pounds and added half a pound to the weight of the fleece.

French births are diminishing and French population is increasing, which is the right idea. Instead of having many new babies, half to two-thirds of them dying, the French, who understand health keep alive those that are born.

UNITED DRUG BUYS CHAIN

United Drug Co., through its retail subsidiary, the Louis K. Liggett Co., has purchased the Beacon Drug Co., which under the names of different subsidiary firms, operates forty-three retail drug stores in the Mid-Western cities of Detroit, Grand Rapids, Flint, Port Huron, Muskegon, Jackson, Ypsilanti, Pontiac, Ecorse and Wyandotte.

This purchase adds approximately $3,500,000 gross sales to the United Drug Co. annually, based on what the stores were doing when taken over. This $3,500,000 mark, however, will be subject to substantial expansion, as every retail acquisition immediately shows increased sales when policies and methods of the Liggett organization become felt.

The purchase of the Beacon Drug Co. was made for cash. While in this instance the Drug Co. purchased the majority stock of the Beacon Co. making the same offer to the small minority interest, the basis of purchase was the same as all its other retail store acquisitions, with careful inventory investigation, sales analysis, etc., before making the purchase.

With the purchase of the Beacon Co., whose stores will hereafter be known as the Liggett stores, the Louis K. Liggett Co. now has in operation 425 retail stores. This is an increase of 57 stores since the first of the year and compared with June 30, 1925, when there were only 303 retail stores, the increase amounts to 122, or close to 40 per cent.

Thus the United Drug Co., including this acquisition since the first of this year has been opening new retail drug stores through its Liggett Co. at the rate of better than three stores a week.

Record Auto Sales

Dodge Bros. July retail sales will approach 40,000 vehicles, making that month the record July in the company's history.

MRS. SCOTT ON 25TH FAST DAY

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 3 (Universal)—Mrs. Catharine Scott, wife of Rumsell Scott, condemned slayer of Joseph Maurer, entered the twenty-fifth day of self-imposed fast today. She is seeking to raise funds to support herself and children after her husband dies on the gallows in Chicago. She is fasting on the stage of a local theatre.

The ravages of starvation are beginning to show on the woman. She is pale and drawn. Her skin is shrunken and she is so weak she can hardly move and she states that it is an effort for her to think. She seldom speaks.

Mrs. Scott has refused to comply with a physician's orders to desist from her fast.

CONDUCTOR ON JOB 43 YEARS

Complacently punching holes in handfuls of tickets, Frank N. Belcher celebrated his forty-third year as a conductor on the Narrow Gauge Railroad.

When he left at home, Conductor Belcher hangs his uniform at No. 301 Winthrop street. Unlike most "old timers" he prefers the present to the days of old. When it is understood that a conductor's salary when he first began was $15 per week and the Saturday night crowds stayed in the Hub until the last saloon closed, his choice may easily be understood.

Democracy's Only Hope

It Must Break the Fetters on Its Freedom

John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for the Presidency in 1924, does honor to his Democracy when he says:

"I think it would be a good thing to eliminate both the unit and the two-thirds rules in Democratic national conventions. It is better that the majority of the delegates should select the candidates.

"Rule of the majority is one of the cardinal principles of the Democratic party. It is a logical thing to apply that principle to its own deliberations."

It is more than logical; it is a necessity of the party's preservation.

The Republican party is accustomed to control by a powerful few. Its membership is indoctrinated with that policy, which expresses the philosophy upon which the party of Hamilton was founded.

The Democratic party, on the other hand, was created to be the political instrument of the common people, to promote the greatest good of the greatest number, and this can be accomplished in the long run only on the basis of majority rule, by which the greatest number determine the greatest good.

When the Democratic party ceases to be democratic it enters into competition with the Republican party, handicapped by the fact that the Republican party has pre-empted the anti-democratic field.

In such a competition the Democratic party can never expect to win more than the crumbs and left-overs on plutocracy's table.

But as the servant of the common people the Democratic party has a field historically and peculiarly its own; an excuse for existence and a chance not only to win but also to deserve to win.

The unit rule and the two-thirds rule are fetters on its freedom that must be broken if it would become once more a powerful influence in the Republic.

A Flivver of the Sky

Real Doers Cannot Stop at 63

Ever since the name "Ford" became established throughout the world as a symbol of reliable, inexpensive motor transportation, the world has been waiting patiently for the genius of Detroit to speed up air development by giving us a flivver of the sky.

Mr. Ford has long heard that cry, growing increasingly urgent, and now the master mechanician presents to the world his answer.

That answer is a real air flivver, with a wing spread of only twenty-two feet, and a fuselage, or body, of only fifteen feet. Not yet satisfied with its already comparatively light weight of 350 pounds, Mr. Ford plans to reduce that weight to 310 pounds by using a special Ford-built engine. Being the smallest single-seater plane ever built, it is estimated it will easily develop eighty-five miles per hour.

The possibilities of an air flivver have been discussed long before the unveiling of Mr. Ford's little present to the world —but Mr. Ford has done little of the discussing.

He is too busy doing to be discussing. That the first announcement of the new flivver plane should come on his sixty-third birthday is in itself evidence of his unceasing activity. Real DOERS, with a mixture of ideas and work in their blood, cannot stop at sixty-three.

Perhaps, in the case of Mr. Ford and aviation, that is fortunate for the United States.

Autocrats Must Act

No Milk-and-Water for Them

The other day Kemal Pasha, autocratic ruler of Turkey, executed fifteen men accused of conspiring against him. Three or four, it is said, were actual conspirators, the others were killed because, as able liberals, their opposition disturbed Kemal's government.

Nothing surprising about that. Autocrats cannot rule and be safe unless they kill their enemies.

The difference between new Turkey under Kemal, and old Turkey under the Sultans, is largely a difference in publicity. Now the world hears what happens. The Sultans used the quiet bowstring, or ordered the killings done in dungeons. The world never knew. We are about as far from real civilization as wolves or hyenas, with our bootleggers, hijackers, gunmen, dope fiends. But we don't know it, and find comfort in ignorance.

Exit the Rube

According to Will Hays, the films have eliminated the "rube" from American humor.

Pictures are now shown in every small town. A great portion of their spectators live on farms. Comedy relief, to be effective, must deal with life elsewhere. The rural patron will smile at a caricature of the urbanite, but the fun is lost when turned on himself.

But perhaps a better reason why rural caricature has ceased to "go" is because the goat-bearded, one-gallus farmer, around whom it revolved, has disappeared.

The chief difference now between the farmer and the city man is that if either is a rube or boob, the chances are it is the latter.

How Saloon Has Gone

Before prohibition Detroit had 1,600 licensed saloons. Six and a half years after Volsteadism took effect, it discovers that it has 15,000 "blind pigs"—the Detroit synonym for "speakeasies."

Members of the German Reichstag who recently visited this country to study our "dryness" report that it is a farce.

Detroit agrees with them.

FLORIDA AND THE INHERITANCE TAX

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THOSE who claim that all property should be conscripted in war as well as all men of proper age, ought to be pleased with the income and the inheritance taxes now in vogue in the United States.

There is no disposition to minimize the sacrifice made by the young men who went to the war and exposed themselves to death, but one may be pardoned for mentioning that while that was but for a few years, the income and inheritance taxes that paid the expenses of the war are still going on.

The people of Florida objected to the inheritance tax and declared that in that State no inheritance or income tax should be levied in the future. The Florida Legislature adopted such a constitutional amendment by a vote of four to one.

The people of Florida held that the taxing of the dead, either by Federal or State legislation, is a capital levy and should not be resorted to except in time of war or other grave emergency. They further asserted that such a levy is the prerogative of the State and not of the nation.

When Florida passed a law exempting its citizens from these objectionable taxes, the United States countered by allowing the citizens of States which did levy an income or inheritance tax to deduct the amount therefor paid from the amount to be paid to the national government. This nullified the advantage to the citizens of Florida.

A number of Florida's leading business men have declared that the endeavor on the part of the national government to coerce the State in this respect is "unprecedented, arbitrary, despotic and indefensible." It declares that although Florida has no severance tax, no corporation tax, no corporation stock transfer tax, no franchise tax, no income or inheritance tax, still it has no bonded indebtedness, it does not owe a dollar, and it had in its treasury the first of last April in excess of eleven million dollars in cash.

It thus demonstrates beyond question that the levying of an inheritance or income tax is utterly unnecessary in Florida.

ADD THE SPICE OF VARIETY TO YOUR HOME LIFE

Add a little variety to your home life.

It is monotonous to do the same things in the same way at all times.

If you get too set in your ways you cannot change your routine.

If you are a wife, vary the menus from day to day and week to week.

If a husband, change the program for family entertainments occasionally.

Perhaps there is only one form of diversion used in your household when all are at home in an evening.

If you all go out together it probably means the same place each time for your holiday dinners or your movie fun.

Just try proposing a novelty for the family party and note its effect.

Try a little surprise, a different route to the centre of the city, a different table at your favorite resort. Substitute a comedy or opera for the regular theatre night.

Every one likes variety, so give the family a chance to enjoy it.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'VE been reading about the latest Lady Criminal.

You'd think it was an ad for a beauty parlor instead of a report on a peculiarly messy murder trial. As a matter of fact, I've seen monkey wrenches with more allure than this particular Jane. But that makes no difference to the romantic audience which follows criminal cases. The mere fact that the defendant is a she immediately endows her with youth, beauty, charm, pathos and supernatural innocence.

You've noticed it, haven't you, Pal? The Lady Criminal may be of the vintage of '98, but let her forge a check and she forthwith becomes a "mere slip of a girl who sought the one way out in her moment of dire distress." Or if perchance she's been doing a wholesale business in peddling snow or moonshine, then you may be your last nickel that she's "the pitiful victim of an underworld gang who hold her in their ruthless clutches."

Don't Blame Papers

And if she has graduated from these kindergarten classes and attained the glory of a full-fledged murderess, you may expect a description that will make Cleopatra look like a cheap chromo.

Let me pause right here to remark that you needn't blame the newspapers for this. We poor word butchers who write papers are as keen for truth as anyone, but we know our limitations.

Can we stand right up in meeting and declare that Suzy the Strangler is at least fifty, looks and acts like a buzzard and probably deserves a life sentence? I'll say we can't. The public won't stand for it. It wants its She Crime Artists to come in fancy packets. And it won't read about 'em if they don't. So it gets them that way.

Now, this practice riles me. It's against my instinct for fair play. Why should female forgers, hop heads, child beaters and gat wielders be given all the benefit of this decorative literature?

When Willie the Wop is arrested for messing up the scenery with the remains of his hated rival, does anyone bust a linotype machine in telling the world of Willie's soulful eyes and slight, graceful figure?

Are we forced to get out special editions describing Willie's socks and Willie's haircut and the way Willie wept when someone brought him a bunch of forget-me-nots? I'll say we aren't!

Frankly Pictured

Willie is depicted frankly as is, with a black eye, five days' growth of whiskers and a wart on his nose. He may have a lovely waist line and an exquisite ankle, but it's nothing to the circulation or art department if he has. What's a mere male murderer? Almost nothing at all.

So why, I ask, should this discrimination be shown to the ladies?

There may be those who deem it a compliment, but personally I think it's a sign that they think we girls are too feeble-minded to be held responsible for our acts, and that only our shapes and complexions count.

As one of the girls, I resent it. I may bang a gat some day myself in a moment of irritation. But if I do, I want to be treated like other gat bangers. I don't want to crawl out of the issue because I have a lovely smile and cry easy. Even as a gat banger I'll have my pride. And I insist on being treated REGULAR.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

They that can give up essential liberty to obtain a little temporary safety deserve neither liberty nor safety.—Franklin.

A good book is the best of friends, the same today and forever.—Tupper.

He who is honest because honesty is the best policy, is not honest.—Whately.

Men, like bullets, go furthest when polished.—Richter.

Time discovereth all things.—Sophocles.

He is no wise man who will quit a certainty for an uncertainty.—Johnson.

A man that studieth revenge keeps his own wounds green.—Bacon.

Ashes fly back in the face of him that throws them.—Voruba.

Accidents will occur in the best regulated families.—Dickens.

Better have it inquired why you have no statue to your memory than why you have.—Cato.

To think is to live—Cicero.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

THIS is the dream men cherish
Heedless of time or tide; other
Dreams pass and perish, this will Alone abide. Other dreams, spent
And shattered, never return again;
They are as leaves, wind-scattered,
This dream will never wane. Ever
To something better, even to higher
Goals, loosing each foolish fetter,
Freeing men's minds and souls,
Stirring the dreamer's vision while
Pairing: "Strive, Strive On!" lighting
The land Elysian; this is Ambition's
Dawn. Nerving to high endeavor,
Training for splendid deed, aiding
The toiler ever, go does Ambition
Lead. Love may have bloomed and
Faded, hate may have flamed and
Died, life may droop, dull and jaded;
Still will this dream abide. This is
The dream men cherish, fairer than
All things are: other dreams pass and
Perish; this is a deathless star!

MARS NOT 'HURLING BOMBS AT US'

By Garrett P. Serviss

A BOSTON man who calls himself "a beginner in science," asks whether there is any necessary absurdity in supposing the meteors and fireballs that we see rushing and exploding in our atmosphere to be missiles fired at the earth from the planet Mars. If not, he would like to make that theory for his own.

But he will find it necessary to dispute the question of priority with Mr. H. G. Wells, who long ago filed a claim in the same field.

Mr. Wells, before he thought of writing his history of the world, told a hardly more extraordinary story of an attempt of the Martians to conquer the earth at long ranges by firing at it huge shells filled, like the Grecian horse at Troy, with irresistible warriors and weapons of war.

The new claimant bases his theory on the simple fact that nobody knows whence these stranger projectiles come, wherefore, considering the reputation of Mars, it may be concluded that they come from that warlike planet with his military compliments.

It must be confessed that this sort of reasoning is not inconsistent with that on which theories, sometimes regarded as scientific, have been based.

Exact Knowledge

The only difference between this sort of theory and the truly scientific sort is in the amount of exact knowledge and the quality of reasoning employed to sustain it.

In itself the notion that Mars may be bombarding the earth and making war generally on its neighbor planets, is no more absurd than the known fact that man frequently makes war upon his fellow men and kills them off by millions.

Can there be the slightest doubt that if we could get into communication with our nearest planetary neighbor, Venus, we would soon have a quarrel with her; would soon, perhaps, be trying to blow her up with a radio bomb?

Human nature is like gravitation, it acts the same wherever you find it. Who can guess what insufferable degree of exasperation the Martians for whose existence even some astronomers have felt quite confident) may have been driven by the long process of evolution to which some theorists hold that they have been subjected?

We are soberly told that they have probably progressed so far that our greatest achievements in practical science would seem child's play to them. They are pictured with bulging heads, crammed with improved brains that bulge their eyes out.

If they are as ill-natured as they are able, which is sometimes the case with the relatively undeveloped inhabitants of our planet, it might be better for us if they did not fix their attention this way.

If the Martians have really done what some of their protagonists have claimed for them, then there could be no necessary absurdity in supposing them capable of sending projectiles that might reach the earth.

Great Advantage

They would only need to impart to such projectiles an initial velocity of about three miles per second, which is much less than half the velocity that would be necessary to free a similar projectile from the control of the earth's attraction. In that sort of warfare they would, therefore, have a great advantage over us.

But to anybody who may be inclined to consider such speculations too seriously it may be well to point out that the fireballs and meteorites that occasionally fall upon the earth bear no resemblance to warlike projectiles, or even to fragments of such projectiles.

Some of them, it is true, are composed of solid nickeliferous iron, but no trace of artificial construction has ever been found in any of them. Others are composed of stony minerals—and these likewise appear to be solely of natural origin.

Moreover, the tracks followed by these bodies are not such as would result from their being projected at the earth from Mars, while their direction of motion and velocity in space before entering our atmosphere indicate that they have been travelling around the earth.

In short, there is no need yet for a planetary peace society to restrain militarism among the members of the sun's family of worlds.

'You Said It, Marceline!'

By MARCELINE D'ALROY

ON "THREE GRADES OF HEARTS"

SOME PEOPLE'S HEARTS
Are a DUMPING ground;
For anything NEW, attractive,
Trashy or IRRESPONSIBLE
Can find a TEMPORARY,
Though EXPOSED, resting
Place THEREIN.
But the HEARTS of OTHERS
Are as a HARBOR.
Those that put INTO
THEM are SAFE
While they STAY THERE,
And if, later, they Want to PUT OUT to
The HIGH SEAS again,
They are NOT REPROACHED.

And the HEARTS of
A few RARE WOMEN are
As a SANCTUARY.
All the FAULTS and FAILURES of life that
Are brought there are UNDERSTOOD and
TAKEN CARE OF. The Hearts of SOME women
Are VACANT lots. The Hearts of SOME WIVES
ARE HARBORS.
But USUALLY not
Till a woman becomes a
MOTHER does her heart
Become A SANCTUARY.
